10,000 Dead — Means Nothing

You Are Living Longer

Daugherty's Good Start

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, by Star Company.

Learn a lesson, young gentlemen, from John G. Shedd, who has celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his connection with Marshall Field & Co. What is true of him is true equally of his associate, James Simpson. They began young with Marshall Field, realized that they were with a big man and a very big concern—with all the opportunity that ability could ask.

They did not wander around, or wonder why no one appreciated them. They worked and stayed. Now they own the business.

"Ten thousand dead in and near Swatow."

A majority don't know where Swatow is. Told that it is in China, 250 miles north of Hong Kong, they don't much care about the ten thousand dead.

What interests them faintly is the combination typhoon and tidal wave that struck the coast and drowned the ten thousand. There is something romantic and interesting in a great wall of water solemnly rolling against the tiny houses of man. Ten thousand dead don't count—when they are Chinese. Not yet much solidarity among humans.

The health of human beings and their length of life improve. Not so long ago, in the second largest city in France, there was not a man or woman living past fifty years of age.

Men were "gray beards" at forty. The sewers ran through open gutters and into the drinking wells in cities. Villages were in the hollow graveyards on the hill. The rain washed graveyard diseases down into the wells.

Statistics show that now the average white male in America lives little over fifty-five years, white women fifty-seven and a half years, in the country. In the city white men live fifty-one and a half years, wor en fifty-four and a half years. In Kansas they live longest of all; the men almost sixty years, the women close to sixty-one. Wisconsin comes next.

Women live longer than men because they live more wisely, temperately, virtuously.

Mr. Daugherty, Attorney-General, combining deeds with words, has indicted three patriots for swindling the government out of a million dollars. If he will multiply that by three thousand it will be a good beginning. One of the first secrets in the net is a former director of sales of the War Department. Highly appropriate.

Lloyd George, of the latest European conference, asks for a moratorium for Germany. Belgium demands cash. France also. They are unanimous on one thing only, namely, moratorium as to the claims of the United States. There isn't a dissenting voice there.

Lord Northcliffe evidently is dying, the end of a powerful career. He rendered the greatest service a newspaper man can render to his nation, fighting not only the government, but public prejudice and dangerous optimism. The English burned him in effigy, as they have often burned Lloyd George, their greatest man since Pitt. The future will honor Northcliffe, son of a powerful Irish mother, as one of the great men of the British empire.

Replying to a foolish statement in Congress that Frank A. Munsey was influenced by advertising in his newspapers, it was said here, and it is true, like a Spartan nurse, Munsey had allowed many newspapers, which all together cost him millions, to starve to death in his arms rather than go out and get advertising for them.

This was understood by some to mean that he let them die because he, Munsey, didn't have the money to keep them going. As a matter of fact, Munsey has always had thirty-five to fifty millions in good securities and real estate ever since he left Wall Street, bringing him only bother and closing up an active account running up to 200,000 shares.

P. S.—Don't think you can go to Wall Street and do the same thing. Munsey never gambled, he KNEW.

The Bolshevikt have sentenced to death Benjamin, the Petrograd Metropolitan and another of the most important in the hierarchy of the Russian Greek Church. It's a mistake in judgment that Lenin, perhaps, would not have made had he been well and in charge.

BOARD ON PRICES NAMED

Consumers Must Pay Quarter a ton to Maintain Profiteer Watch

Governor Cox has appointed a committee to prevent profiteering in coal.

Today it develops that consumers will be charged twenty-five cents per ton to help pay the expenses of this committee.

In other words every householder purchasing coal will contribute twenty-five cents every time he or she buys a ton to as sure him or herself that the dealer doesn't overcharge.

And the quarter per ton will go to help support a State Coal Committee, headed by James J. Storrow. Of course, New England will be glad to pay it—if the committee staves off a famine.

The quarter a ton addition to the coal price was among the things announced today by Chairman Storrow, following a meeting of the committee.

DEALERS TO COLLECT.

It was announced that the dealers selling the coal to consumers will tack the extra quarter to the price, and then turn the money over to the State committee.

"To meet expenses arising in the carrying out of their plans" was the official excuse for the charge.

The committee, following a conference attended by James J. Phelan, A. C. Hatchesky, J. Frank O'Hare, R. Preston Clark, E. W. Longley, Chairman Storrow and representatives of the coal trade, announced that coal prices will be fixed in each vicinity.

They also announced that the quarter per ton extra charge may be increased in some vicinities and decreased in others, "according to the financial needs of the committee."

Local committees will work under direction of the State committee, it was stated, as was the case during the war.

Retail coal dealers will be forced to take substantial quantities of soft coal in place of anthracite. Chairman Storrow said consumers must learn at once to use soft coal.

He denied he had been advised by Herbert Hoover that any hard coal was on transit to this Commonwealth. He said hospital and public utilities will head the preference list. A committee has been formed to tabulate coal dealers according to their credit.

CLIPPED

WILLIAM J. BRYAN,
The Commoner, as he looks today with his leonine mane shorn.

Norfolk, Neb., Aug. 8.—A man stepped into a barber shop, sat down on a chair and ordered the barber to "trim it close."

It was quite a job. The man had plenty of hair. There was nothing in the centre, but the side drapes were heavy. The barber worked for an hour.

When it was all over, William Jennings Bryan said he felt much better. The famous name that gave the Commoner his leonine aspect when he thundered in oratory is gone. Bill looks like a business man now.

Mr. Byran appeared in the best of health and emphasized that his hair cut would not mean a cut in his activities. He said he would return north in the Fall for a strenuous campaign for the Democratic party.

HUB MAN FIGHTS FOR BODY OF WOMAN

Philadelphia, Aug. 8.—Joseph C. Vilen of No. 116 Bowen street, South Boston, today identified a woman who dropped dead here a month ago as his daughter and the wife of Joseph Caney.

William Pennypacker, who has already claimed her as his wife, paid for her funeral and threw Caney out of his house when Caney claimed she was his wife.

They are now fighting over the body.

HARDING ASKS FULL SESSION

Notifies Members to Be Ready to Take Up Industrial Legislation

President Harding is preparing to ask Congress to enact railroad strike legislation, Washington observers believed today, following a request by the President to congressional leaders to have a full attendance of the House when that body reconvenes next Tuesday. Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, today telegraphed sixteen chiefs of the railroad brotherhoods asking them to attend a general conference of railway employes at Washington next Friday. Chairman Hooper of Railroad Labor Board announced the President had apparently found "safe and sane" course and declared seniority question need not be factor in settlement on most roads.

Striking shopmen of the Southern Railway and the Mobile and Ohio railroads today rejected peace overtures on the ground that the strike must be settled nationally.

Operators-miners conference at Cleveland marked time waiting action of absent operators on invitation to join meeting tomorrow. Eight men attempted to break through the line of guards at mines near Staunton, Ind., and were dispersed by shots. Coal and rail strikes are responsible for idleness of more than one million men, it was revealed today.

Washington, Aug. 8 (By the Associated Press).—Faced with probable rejection of his latest rail strike settlement, proposal by the striking railway shopmen and with a reply from the executives as yet uncertain, President Harding today let it be known that he is desirous of having the House reconvene next Tuesday prepared to enact any legislation which might be deemed advisable in connection with the industrial situation.

The President, it was said at the White House, has informed the House leaders that he is opposed to any program of three-day recesses such as has been contemplated.

He has suggested to the leaders, it was further stated, that instead of marking time with a handful of members present, after the House reconvenes next Tuesday, that a full membership be on hand so that Congress might function in case any legislation is needed to carry out

BOY, 14, IS HANGED AT PLAY

Father of Dorchester Youth Thinks He Might Have Been 'Lynched' in Movie Stunt

Norman C. Morse, fourteen-year-old inventor of Dorchester, may have been "lynched" by boys from another neighborhood while playing "movies," his father fears.

The boy was found hanging from a cross-piece in a shed opposite his home at No. 2 Barry Park.

The body was discovered by the boy's father, Ernest V. Morse, at 2 o'clock this morning, after an all-night search. The shed is located on an estate directly opposite the Morse home.

Boys of the neighborhood frequently played "movies" in the shed, which was used as a tool house. They tried to outdo themselves in performing stunts.

When the father, searching for his son, who had been missing since noon yesterday, came to the shed, he pulled at the door, which opens outward. He felt a tug. As he entered he could see a dark form suspended from a rope. He struck a match. It was Norman.

ROPE ROLLED AWAY.

There was a heavy rope around the boy's neck. Under the rope a handkerchief had been tied; apparently to soften the pull of the rope. A smaller rope was tied around the lad's waist. One end of this rope was tied to the knob of the door.

Nearby was a keg, which had either been rolled or kicked away from the spot where the boy was suspended.

Medical Examiner Leary was immediately notified.

NO MOTIVE FOR SUICIDE.

The father told the police there was no conceivable motive for suicide. On the other hand, he said, his son had no enemies.

The heartbroken father wept when he was told that his son had been dead for some time.

"I can't understand it," he said. "Norman was such a normal boy, such a studious and good boy. Who could have done this? I'm sure Norman didn't kill himself. He had everything to live for. There was no strain of melancholy in his makeup. Why, he was ambitious. He wanted to become a big man when he grew up."

With Mrs. Mary S. Morse, the mother, sobbing in hysteria in an adjoining room, the father told his story to a Boston American reporter.

"I cannot believe that Norman did this himself. I will not rest until I find out who did it," he said. "Norman had everything to live for. He left the house shortly after

TRAGEDY FOLLOWS CHILD'S PRANK

Patrolman's 5-Year-Old Child Pulls Trigger as He Kisses Family Good Morning

Papa Burke kissed Mamma good morning for the last time today.

Into his home at No. 13-A Dana street, Malden, with cheery relaxation from the grind of a night beat Patrolman Tom Burke shed his coat and bent over the bed of his wife Nellie. In her arm was cradled Baby John, seven months old, in her eyes, mother love.

A kiss, one for Baby John and then from a crib behind the burly officer the childish prattle of five-year-old Helen.

"See Mamma, bang, bang."

They looked and screamed.

Helen stood with her father's revolver. She had plucked it from the holster in his back jacket.

A shot, a puff of smoke and the mother lay writhing in bed, Blood gushing from an abdominal wound to stain crimson the bedclothes.

That is the shadow that wiped the sunshine out of the Burke home today.

Thirty minutes later in Malden Hospital Rev. Father Thomas Murphy of the Immaculate Conception Church, Malden, had given Mrs. Burke the last rites of the church. Ten minutes after that she was dead.

DEATH THREATS FOR BLACKHAND WITNESSES

Pietro Luciano, witness today in the trial of seven Italian defendants for the murder of Michael Scarpone, testified that two men threatened to kill him if he dared to testify in court.

Luciano, who lives at No. 125 Endicott street, North End, was one of the first witnesses today when the trial reopened in the Suffolk Superior Criminal Court before Judge Dubuque and a jury. His testimony as to the death threat caused a sensation in the crowded court room.

He told the court that last Sunday afternoon two men came up to him on Beverly street and said:

"If you go up there and testify, we'll kill you."

Luciano related incidents connected with the "blackhand" letter

LAWRENCE STRIKERS TO MEET MILL MEN

Lawrence striking textile operatives agreed today to meet representatives of the mills. At a conference with the State Board of Arbitration agents of the strikers said they were ready to meet the mill men to discuss the latters' original proposition to return to work at the old wage scale, but for a shorter work week. The strikers' representatives said they could not discuss a wage cut.

WOOLEY, NOTED DRY CANDIDATE, IS ILL

Granada, Spain, Aug. 8 (By the Associated Press).—John C. Woolley, seventy-two, twice Prohibition candidate for President of the United States, is suffering from a cerebral attack at a hotel here and is reported in a most serious condition. He was taken ill several days ago and has lapsed into an unconscious state. Mr. Woolley's son, it was announced, is coming from America to be with his father here.

JEWS STILL LEAD N. Y. POPULATION

Washington, Aug. 8.—New York's foreign born white population, and the native population whose parents were foreign born, still is led by the Hebrew group, according to official figures put out today. The Hebrew group totals 946,139 in the last completed figures. English and Celtic are next, numbering 837,482; then comes Italian 802,045; German 800,789, Russian 321,163 and Polish 161,316.

of an aunt at No. 10 Woodville terrace crying for "Mamma."

In his home sits Tom Burke, bent forward dumb with grief.

"It happened so quickly," is all he can say. "I can't believe it. It don't seem possible she's dead."

"I had just come off night duty," added the patrolman, who was attached to the Malden station. "I arrived home about 8:20. I found Mrs. Burke in bed, my wife and little Ethel and our baby John.

"I had reached over the bed and kissed them all good morning and was about to change my clothes to prepare for breakfast when in the handling of an eye little Helen had the gun and the terrible accident had happened."

Dr. F. A. Hodgdon attended Mrs. Burke and ordered her removed to the hospital. There it was found that the bullet had entered the lower right side of the body a little to the right of the centre and penetrated the abdomen, causing internal hemorrhage.

Mrs. Burke, whose full name was Mrs. Nellie Teresa Burke, was 27 years old and had married when she was twenty years old. Born and raised in Malden, she was well known and popular.

News of the tragedy spread throughout the city and threw the Malden police station into gloom. Patrolman Burke was popular. The sudden visitation of such a tragedy was a shock to his brother officers.

Offers $100 for Husband; All Spurn Her

New York, Aug 8.—The days of chivalry are deader'n a doornail.

Here's a pretty German immigrant, Miss Rose Poch, who, through some technicality, can't get into these United States unless she's married to an American.

She offered $100 to any man who would marry her so that she could get in.

Nix. Nobody came.

ROXBURY MOB OF 500 CHASES THIEF

Rescued from a mob of 500 men on West Cottage street, Roxbury, Owen A. Greenan, of No. 10 Hampshire street was arraigned in Roxbury Court today charged with larceny.

Although fully 500 men and boys chased Greenan, as he sped, hatless, coatless and in his stocking feet into the arms of Patrolman Mulligan, not one of the mob could tell why they chased the man.

Anna Hubbiey, however, arrived on the scene, and claimed that the fugitive had stolen $4 from her in the lodging house, No. 18 West Cottage street. Investigation showed Greenan had hired a room there a short time previous. Greenan was also charged with non-support of his wife.

JAZZ DRIVES CLUB STEWARD FROM JOB

New Bedford, Aug. 8.—The New Bedford Yacht Club is looking for a new steward. The former steward, Captain Louis E. Smith, put an ultimatum up to the board of governors, saying: "Mrs. Smith and I are kept up all night by the jazz music at the dances in the club. You'll either have to provide me with quarters away from the clubhouse or raise my pay so I can get a house somewhere." Apparently the board thought more of the jazz than it did of the steward, and his resignation was accepted.

STOLE KISS; HELD AS BURGLAR

New York, Aug. 8. (By International News Service)—John Connelly entered a tent in the bungalow colony at Croton Point, saw a young woman sleeping on a cot, stole a kiss and today is detained by the State police at Croton on a charge of burglary. A companion, James Mullen, is held also. The young woman who was kissed and two companions, who were sleeping in the tent, awakened in a fighting mood and chased the two men until State policemen took a hand.

QUINCE PRINCE CHECK IS BOGUS

Harold Schwarm, otherwise known as Prince Louis Henri de Chateraux de Bourbon, who deserted a Boston wife and child to run away with a Taunton nurse, and who is wanted by the police of several cities on bigamy charges, was arrested in the town of Palmer in 1918 on a charge of forgery.

In January of that year the Prince Charming put up at the Palmer Hotel. There he swaggered through the lobby and presented a check to the over-awed clerk for $75. Then the check proved to be worthless and the "Prince" was arrested and arraigned in the Palmer court on Jan. 28, 1918. The case was passed on to the Grand Jury. The Prince left town and has not been seen there since.

The Prince is father of a small boy, now living in Boston with his mother, Miss Catherine Frances Lynn, divorced wife of the bogus nobleman.

Miss Lynn, who lives on Marcella street, Roxbury, was married to Schwarm about three years ago, when he was in Boston posing as "Dr. Van Buren." Schwarm deserted her shortly before their child was born. Later she secured an annulment of her marriage.

The child is little John Joseph Van Buren. His mother, however, says he will shortly be formally adopted by a relative and his name will be changed to Lynn. He has never seen his father.

RUNAWAY AUTO DRIVER HELD FOR DEATH

Peter Cavanaugh of Grapevine road, Hamilton, was arrested by the Revere police on the charge of manslaughter. He is charged with being the autoist who killed Christopher Boccuzzi, a watchman on the Lynn-Revere boulevard, near Point of Pines, and ran away.

Cavanaugh was arrested at his home in Hamilton, and was released in $5,000 bail, furnished by Mrs. Hester H. Sharp of Wenham, by whom he is employed as a chauffeur.

Boccuzzi was killed when he was hit by an automobile which crashed through guard rails about a new stretch of pavement on the boulevard. Boccuzzi was waving a red lantern when the auto struck him, the police say.

Cavanaugh told the police he knew nothing about the accident. Spectators got the number of Mrs. Sharp's automobile at the time of the accident and told the police the autoist ran away after the accident.

While Boccuzzi lay dying on the pavement fully one hundred automobiles stood in line, in plain sight of him, but no occupant volunteered to aid him or take him to a hospital.

Arraigned before Judge Bossen in Chelsea court, Cavanaugh pleaded not guilty. He was held for a hearing August 16.

TIMILTY RESCUES BOY FROM DROWNING

Charles Timilty, son of the late Senator "Diamond Jim" Timilty, saved the life of Wolvey Sargent Philip Belansky of Hough's Neck when the latter became exhausted while swimming in the inner harbor this noon. Mr. Timilty, seeing the boy in distress, plunged into the water and, after a series of nearly one-third of a mile, reached him in time to keep him above the surface and bring him safely ashore. Mr. Timilty is also a resident of Hough's Neck.

LONG WILL NOT ASK FOR RECOUNT

St. Louis, Aug. 8 (By the Associated Press)—Breckenridge Long, defeated by Senator James A. Reed for the Democratic Senatorial nomination at last Tuesday's primary, today issues a statement saying he will neither ask for a recount nor file a contest. Declaring he still considered himself the choice of the Democrats of Missouri for the Senatorial toga, the former Third Assistant Secretary of State declared between 40,000 and 50,000 Republicans voted in the Democratic primary, but "owing to a defective primary law, there is no legal remedy."

CONSCIENCE HURT, YES FIVE CENTS WORTH!

New London, Ct., Aug. 8.—Harry Crandall of Gales Ferry became conscience-stricken following his having professed religion and returned five cents to the Thames Ferry Company. Crandall in his letter to Mayor Luckie E. Whitton said that fifteen years ago he evaded the payment of his fare on the ferry boat plying between Gales Ferry and Groton. With the confession was a five-cent coin.

SEIZE QUINCY MAN FOR BOOZE THEFT

Taunton, Aug. 8.—Joseph Jacobs of Turner street, Hough's Neck, Quincy, charged with robbery while armed and also with the theft of forty gallons of liquor and $2,800 in money from the residence of Thomas Kerns of South street, Raynham, last Friday, was before Judge Woods in District Court today. He was held in $10,000 and the case continued to August 16.

Jacobs was arrested by State Officers Clemmy and Sherlock. It is alleged that he was one of the three men concerned in the robbery. Other arrests are expected.

KIDNAPING' OF WIFE REALLY RUNAWAY

New York, Aug. 8.—The "kidnaping" of Mrs. Salvatore Iavarone and her son, Tony, four, was disclosed as a voluntary disappearance when the pretty thirty-year-old Italian woman met her butcher husband in Police Headquarters.

They greeted each other coldly and Detective Michael Fiaschetti sat with them as they wrangled over the differences which caused the wife to vanish on June 23.

Three men have been arrested as alleged members of a band of blackhanders who abducted the little Iavarone boy, and who were suspected also of kidnaping the wife.

It was revealed that Iavarone has obtained a passport to return to his native land, taking his boy with him and allowing Mrs. Iavarone to go her way.

Iavarone told detectives he had recovered his boy at the Grand Central Terminal after paying $200 to alleged blackmailers.

For several years, Lavarone said, he has been mulcted of $25 weekly by blackmailers.

Bride Falls Dead in Hotel While on Honeymoon

Gloucester, Aug 8 — Mrs. Marion Campbell, wife of Arthur F. Campbell, both residing in Boston, dropped dead in a room at the Clifford House, Pigeon Cove, while honeymooning.

The Campbells, school teachers of Boston, had been married but three weeks. They were reading letters received from friends, when suddenly the young woman fell over and expired. Death was due to heart failure. She was thirty-five years of age.

TRIES TO ESCAPE JAIL WITH BED SLAT

When the truck driven by William Burns, of No. 26 Moore street, Newton, and Edward D. Daly, of No. 4 Winthrop avenue, Newton, left the garage of T. Patrick McCauliffe, Weston chief of police, there was a brand new inner tube and rim in it.

"I was asleep, argued Burns, and "I didn't steal 'em," declared Daly, when they were placed under arrest. At the same time two bottles of alcohol flew by Officer Fliney and landed in the street. Burns and Daly were locked up.

Burns found his incarceration irksome, and with a slat from the cell cot, he endeavored to beat his way to freedom. He was placed in a stronger cell.

Today in the Waltham court Burns was found guilty of drunkenness, larceny of tube and rim, and the destruction of police property, for which he was fined $20 and sentenced to thirty days in the House of Correction. He appealed. Daly was found guilty of drunkenness, larceny, and throwing bottles in the highway, and drew down a $20 fine.

that led up to the murder. On January fourth or fifth, he said, two of the defendants, Luigi Di Padova, and Antonio Masciti, the latter of whom has confessed to writing the letter, asked him to come to their rooms and write something.

Luciano went to their rooms, but told them he could neither read nor write. He then went out for cigarettes, and on his return saw an envelope on the table.

Under cross-examination he denied that Masciti asked him to mail the letter or mailed it himself.

James H. Jones, gun expert of Quincy, testified that the 25-calibre Spanish revolver that was picked up in an ash barrel the day of the murder had sufficient force to kill a man at 100 feet. Dominic Bontorno, one of the defendants, was the owner of the gun, according to the allegations of the prosecution.

Jones identified the holes in the sheathing from the tenement formerly occupied by Amarello, one of the defendants, and in the table leaf in the same tenement, as having been made by bullets from a 25-calibre revolver. The two pieces of board picked up on Unity street the day of the murder were probably bullets, and a third piece was a .38-calibre bullet, he said.

The State has presented in evidence two .38-calibre automatics, but the bullet that killed Scarpone was from a .32 revolver, according to Jones. This was established, he said, by the fact that the bullet found in Scarpone's body showed that it had been fired from a weapon with a left-hand bore, while automatics are always made with a right-hand bore.

RUSSIAN RELIEF THANKS AMERICA

Hamburg, Aug. 8 (By the Associated Press).—"The charity of the American people kindles the dream of brotherhood among mankind just at the time when brotherly love and sympathy are very much needed," writes Maxim Gorky in a letter thanking Herbert Hoover and all other Americans for the aid extended during the Russian famine. The letter, given out by the local office of the American Relief Administration, is dated July 30, exactly a year from the date Gorky addressed his telegraphic appeal for assistance to America.

SOFT DRINK PLACES NOW UNDER LICENSE

The law authorizing cities and towns throughout the State to regulate soft drinking places under a licensing system went into effect today. Enactment of the law was urged before legislative committees by representatives of the Boston police commissioner and other officials concerned with the enforcement of the liquor laws. They claimed that many soft drink places were operated as a "blind" for the sale of moonshine and home brew.

SILK MILL MEN WANT MORE PAY

Paterson, N. J., Aug. 8.—One thousand employes in twenty broad silk mills went on strike today because their demand for an increase in wages was refused. The increase demanded was from 20 to 22 per cent. Even if this were granted, strike leaders said, their pay still would be 20 per cent. lower than [illegible]0.

Royster was a son of James Daniel Royster, and a grandson of David Royster, one of the first settlers of Raleigh.

WOOL APPEALS LIQUOR FINE OF $200

Myer Wool of No. 143 Walnut street, Chelsea, was found guilty today in the Cambridge Court of keeping and exposing intoxicating liquor for sale. He was fined $200 and appealed. Wool was arrested following the raiding of a barn at No. 146 Willow street, East Cambridge, where police found a large still in operation. Samuel Fiedman, Abraham Brostein and Morris Gross, all of Chelsea, arrested at the same time, were discharged today.

PICTURES OBSCENE, OWNER GIVEN MONTH

Jacob Rosen, No. 9 Bromfield street, failed to convince Judge Parmenter in Municipal Court today that he was an art connoisseur. He was arrested for having obscene pictures in his possession. Judge Parmenter gave him a month in the workhouse and suspended the sentence upon Rosen's promise to confine his art researches to the public galleries.

HARVESTER KING AGING RAPIDLY DESPITE GLAND OPERATION

MATHILDE SLIPS OUT OF HOTEL

Believed to Have Followed Trunks, Smuggled Away, Marked "Geneva"

By C. F. BERTELLI,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Aug. 8.—That the gland operation has not proved beneficial is the verdict of friends of Harold F. McCormick, who have seen him frequently since his arrival here.

While immediately after the trip across the ocean the Harvester millionaire looked younger and stronger than ever, he is now reported by intimates as getting easily tired and looking haggard, with his hair getting grayer and whiter daily.

BLAMES THE REPORTERS.

Despite McCormick's statements that he feels perfectly well, his friends admit that whatever the immediate effect of his recent operation may have been, it certainly does not show signs of being permanently beneficial.

When jarred by his friends about his tired appearance, McCormick is reported to have replied:

"It is the fault of the newspapermen who have worried me beyond expression with their unwelcome publicity.

"A bad night at Monte Carlo at the high-stake table is nothing compared to keeping secret Mathilde's movements in Paris," McCormick told friends at luncheon, after reckoning well over $10,000 already spent in encouraging discretion on the part of menials attending his daughter's comfort.

McCormick's hotel which is well known as headquarters for Mary Garden when she is here, is constantly besieged by reporters for the press of the world, while the Avenue Kleber, around the corner, requires special police to regulate the parking of powerful automobiles kept in readiness by special writers to follow the American heiress.

MATHILDE SLIPS AWAY.

While thousands of dollars were thus wasted in a fruitless watch, Mathilde's seven big trunks, containing an elaborate collection of Paris gowns and daintiest lingerie, were smuggled out of the hotel through a never-before-used door giving out onto Place Etoile.

The baggage was marked "Geneva" and was duly shipped from the Lyons station tonight on the Orient express.

Whether Mathilde followed her baggage is a matter of speculation, as she left the hotel at luncheon time in a big auto and might easily board the International Express at La Roche station, three hours from Paris, thus avoiding the newspaper crowd permanently, assigned to watch trains for Switzerland.

"Swamp Mother"

LEAH SILVER

LEAH SILVER AND HER BABY GO TO PRISON

She prefers jail to marriage to the father of her children.

Leah Silver of Lynn, who abandoned her sixteen-months-old baby girl, Ruth, in a Coney Island swamp a month ago, and later gave birth to a second girl at Kings County Hospital, New York, will serve time rather than marry, she says.

She was held to the Grand Jury yesterday and went to jail with her babies.

Facing a term inside prison walls, the girl mother spurns the opportunity to win freedom by wedding the man who wronged her.

Raymond L. Cullen, a young United States sailor, who courted the girl in this city, offered to marry her and care for her and her children when he heard of her plight.

But the young mother, now lodged in Raymond street jail, New York City, with tiny June Claire Silver, her second baby girl, clasped to her breast, will have none of him.

"I only want to go home and start over again," she declares whenever the subject of marriage is mentioned to her.

"When I leave here I will take June Claire with me. I shall return to Lynn, and get work to raise my child

SUES SISTER OVER SUPPORT OF MOTHER

Miss Lillian Goldstein of Winthrop has filed a bill in equity in Superior Court to compel her sister, Mrs. Sarah R. Dangel, of No. 9 Charlotte Street, Somerville, to assist her in supporting their aged mother, Mrs. Annette Goldstein.

Miss Goldstein declares she has borne the support of her mother alone for more than two years and is unable to continue. She charges her sister with being well able, financially, to contribute toward her mother's support, but allows the elder has refused to do so except under conditions that are unreasonable.

The plaintiff asks that Mrs. Dangel be ordered to compensate her in part for the money she has already spent on her mother. Sherman L. Whipple is representing Miss Goldstein.

RAILROAD MAN IN COURT FOR SPEEDING

Carl A. Dotthohn, a Boston and Maine mechanic, who lives in the Maplewood section of Malden, was arraigned in the Malden court this morning on a charge of speeding. Dotthohn explained to the judge that he is engaged in reaching the strike breakers of the Boston and Maine railroad. Several threats have been made against him, and he was hurrying home from his work when he was arrested. He explained that he has no speedometer on his machine and did not know how fast he was going. The court continued the case until August 18.

What to Do With Rugs You Don't Use

Don't roll them in a bundle and stand them in the corner of a closet or store room for moths and dust to ruin.

You can get a fair price for them in their present good condition, because people are always reading the "For Sale" column of the Boston American to find rugs and other house furnishings which they can purchase at reasonable prices.

NEW HAVEN MOVES FOR INJUNCTION

New Haven, Ct., Aug. 8.—Claiming that the specific terms of the Clayton act had not been followed, counsel for the striking shopmen here today asked Justice Edwin S. Thomas, of the United States District Court to dismiss the second application of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad for the issuance of a temporary injunction, at a hearing in court.

C. M. Sheafe, Jr., counsel for the railroad, maintained that the second application was perfectly legal, but at his request a recess was ordered to give him time to examine the matter.

This is the second time that a hearing on the issuance of an injunction has been held. The first hearing was on July 25, when the application of the company was dismissed because of mistakes in the papers were found.

SHEEDY'S POST IS MADE PERMANENT

Washington, Aug. 8.—Joseph E. Sheedy of Martha's Vineyard, Mass., acting vice-president of the Shipping Board's Emergency Corporation, has been named vice-president of the corporation, Chairman Lasker announced today.

MOTHER OF 4, FOUND DRUNK, SOON DIES

Webster, Aug. 8.—Mrs. Nellie Jacobs, mother of four children, was found unconscious today on the grounds of the Stevens School. Dr. O. H. Merrill was summoned. He said the woman was suffering from alcoholism and exposure.

Enroute to a Worcester hospital in an ambulance the woman died.

It was said she had been seen with two men in the driving rainstorm of yesterday. The police are looking for the men, who are supposed to have left the woman when she became unconscious. Mrs. Jacobs has been arrested on charges of drunkenness several times, and on Saturday came out of the Worcester House of Correction after a thirty day's sentence

PROBE OF OFFICE INSISTED ON BY MANNING

Discovery that the Finance Commission only has the right to probe the office of John P. Manning, clerk of the Superior Court, which forced the city council to abandon its intended probe, prompted Mr. Manning today to demand an investigation of his office by the finance commission.

John P. Manning.

"I respectfully request that a full and complete investigation of the office of Clerk of the Superior Criminal Court during my incumbency be made by your commission and that the same be begun at once."

AMERICAN LEADING IN BALLOON RACE

Geneva, Aug. 8 (By the Associated Press).—Numerous storms and adverse squalls nearly spoiled the international balloon race for the James Gordon Bennett cup, causing several early landings. Lieutenant Walter Reed, American, reported landing near Pappenheim, Germany. Major Oscar Westover, American, was heard from in Hungary. There remained to be heard from Captain H. E. Honeywell, American, and four others. Westover covered the greatest distance of those reporting.

Flapper Learns How to Sell a Suit to a Soft Boiled Egg Who Doesn't Need One

It's An Art When He Wants the Store Thrown in for $14.75.

By THE FLAPPER.

"It ain't sucha good fit—"

"It fits you like a glove," I snapped at the customer who was looking disconsolately at himself in the glass. "What do you want for $14.75, and on time at that?"

"I wanted a belt in the back," he demurred, fretfully.

It was about the nineteenth thing he'd wanted. No suit could have all the specifications the customer'd ordered. Not even one from the extensive racks of the Kollege Kut Klothes on Kredit. The youth had no doubt seen a picture of a mail order suit, "no extra charge for peg-topped trousers, no matter how extreme," and the memory of the elegant pearl buttons on the sleeves and the zig-zagged pockets lingered.

"You better take this one," I urged, pulling it out in back while he looked at the front, "it's a snappy model for a clever dresser. Look, leather buttons, notched lapels, pleats—"

BALKS HIS GETAWAY

"I want a belt in the back."

I walked over to Mr. Meyer, the head salesman.

"What shall I do with this soft boiled egg?" I asked, thumbing over my shoulder at the hesitant customer. "He wants a belt in the back."

"H'mm," h'mmed the boss, threateningly. "I'll give him a belt in the back!"

For fifteen dollars not even, he wants to walk off with the store. While he's deciding what he wants I could shave off the wool from the sheep an' weave him a suit. Cheap skate!"

I returned to plead with the customer, but found him back in his own clothes silently stealing for the door.

"Mr. Meyer," I screamed. "Quick, he's getting away."

"I thought I'd look elsewhere," murmured the customer as Mr. Meyer intercepted him.

"TRY AND GET OUT"

"Yes," smiled the boss. And then with a hard note in his voice, he added, "Try an' get out! Now," more amiably, "what was it you wanied?"

"I want a blue suit—"

"Turn on the blue light," ordered Mr. Meyer.

"With a belt in the back—"

Mr. Meyer threw up both hands in a gesture of despair.

"I offer to give away next to free a model of the best Kollege Kut line for the Klever dresser, and what does he say. He wants he must have a belt in the back. That I should live to hear—listen, how's this suit. Try it on. You can't tell how it looks till you get it on."

This time the unhappy young man was forced into a Klassy Kuntry Klub model.

HE WEAKENS, SOLD

"There," cried Mr. Meyer, rubbing his hands gleefully. "You look so swell your friends won't know you. A new man. Step outside once and see the goods in the light."

"Watch him," he added, motioning to me. "See that he don't get away. Ah," rubbing his hands with new vigor, "how do you do, sir! Anything we can do for you, sir!"

The young man in the Kuntry Klub model looked blankly from one of us to the other.

"Oh," gasped Mr. Meyer in great surprise. "There, you see? I didn't know you. It's that suit."

"All right," weakened the youth. "I'll take it."

As he left the store Mr. Meyer flung a last word after him.

"You'll never regret it," he said. "It'll wear you like iron."

"I wish," the young man said, weakly, "I can't help wishing I'd got a belt in the back."

"No," smiled Mr. Meyer, with mock amiability, "nor me, either."

SUMMONS R. R. UNION CHIEFS

the administration's program with respect to the coal and railroad situations.

Possible legislation which it was suggested the President might have in mind included authorization to take over the railroads in event of their failure to operate to the point that the country demands; amendment of the transportation a ct to give the railroad labor board authority over the questions arising during a strike such as the present troublesome question of seniority and amendment of the transportation act to give force to labor board decisions through imposition of penalties for violation.

House members now in Washington pointed out that the success or failure of the present negotiations would be determined before next Tuesday and as the President, himself, has termed the proposal put forward yesterday as "rather the final call," he would be prepared for another step by the time the House meets.

Stone Summons All Chiefs of R. R. Unions

Cleveland, O., Aug. 8 (By the Associated Press).—Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, today telegraphed sixteen chiefs of railroad brotherhoods asking them to attend a conference in Washington next Friday to consider the railroad situation throughout the country and "avert the impending calamity of a collapse in transportation."

President Stone's action was taken following receipt of a telegram from Bert M. Jewell, head of the shopcrafts' unions; William H. Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists and J. F. Noonan, president of the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, asking him to call such a meeting.

Strikes Force Idleness Upon Million Men

By Cosmopolitan News

New York, Aug. 8.—Hunger, privation and illness in a hundred thousand homes today is only one result of the long-drawn-out coal miners' and railroad shopmen's strike. Some other grave ramifications are to come.

The steel industry is running at low speed for lack of coal and faces a partial suspension.

Prospects for next year's crops are going glimmering because steel is lacking for manufacturing agricultural implements.

The ship industry is suffering because its coal supply is restricted.

Automobile factories are beginning to feel the pinch caused by lack of steel and its accessories.

The steel industry was the first to be hit and hit hardest by the strikes. Already 100,000 men are reported to be thrown out of work from steel and pig iron plants. That number may be doubled if the strike continues another month.

The larger concerns are running on a 70 per cent. production basis as against a 77 per cent one normally.

Smaller plants have an output of 60 per cent. against 63 per cent. normal.

With a million workers idle now, twice that number may be affected unless the strikes are settled within sixty days.

No Sessions of Coal Conference Today

Cleveland, Aug. 8 (By the Associated Press).—With a definite program for ending the soft coal strike ready for consideration tomorrow, the joint conference of the leaders of the striking union miners and coal operators today marked time awaiting the expected arrival of other operators, especially those of Illinois and Indiana. In addition, operators were expected from several other States scattered over the soft coal fields, for the program contemplated a settlement on substantially a national basis.

No sessions of the joint conference were held today. President John L. Lewis, of the miners, as also leaders among the operators here were optimistic regarding the probability of a settlement, which if accomplished would be followed almost immediately by the union asking anthracite operators to renew the wage negotiations that were broken off in June. Mr. Lewis had expressed the opinion that "this week will see the end of the bituminous coal controversy."

Hooper Indorses Harding Plan

Chicago, Aug. 8.—The President, in his latest proposition to the railways and the striking shopmen, has found the "safe and sane position of fairness and conservatism," Chairman Ben Hooper of the United States Railway Labor Board announced today.

Foul Play Victim?

NORMAN C. MORSE.

DORCHESTER BOY HANGED

noon yesterday. Before he left he asked his mother what she would have as dessert for supper. When she told him she would have pie, he laughed, and said he'd be back early.

"When I got home from my work in the Boston Navy Yard, Mrs. Morse told me that Norman hadn't returned. I started out to search for him. When he failed to return by 9 o'clock I informed the police and continued my search."

"Last Sunday I had gone swimming with Norman. I went to all the swimming places where we used to go, and looked for clothing or other clews. I found nothing.

"The thought occurred to me that he might have run away, but I dismissed that thought at once. A man was in the second year in Mechanic Arts Schools in Boston. He was looking forward eagerly to the reopening of the school season. I'm a planner in the navy yards, you know, and I've taught Norman my business. He was awfully bright.

DESIGNED CANOE.

"He made quite a bit of extra money manufacturing a special model of kites for the kids in the neighborhood. He had several orders for kites on hand, and was making them. In addition to that he had finished a model of a collapsible canoe, designed to be taken along in an auto. It turned out fine, and we were going to get a patent on it.

"Along about midnight Mrs. Morse's condition grew so bad that I determined to search all night. I remembered that Norman used to play a great deal in a shed on the Stone estate across from where we live. Burdick Stone was one of his closest friends.

"I went over to the shed. I figured he might have gotten in to get something, perhaps, that he had left there. I thought perhaps he had fallen asleep.

NOT AN ACCIDENT.

"When I opened the door, I saw his body swinging from the crosspiece.

"The kids tell me that the boys used to use the shed for playing movies, and that they figured out all kinds of stunts. It is hinted that Norman was trying out some sort of a stunt when he accidentally hanged himself.

"I don't believe it. The rope was not only around his neck, but it was also wound around his stomach. Norman never did it him self. I'm going to find out who did it if it takes the rest of my life."

AMERICAN IS KILLED BY MEXICANS

Mexico City, Aug 8 (By the Associated Press).—Thomas Martin was killed and Guy Markers was seriously injured near La Zacatera mine in the State of Coahuila, in an encounter with miners from a neighboring camp. Dispatches from Torreon say the Americans had an altercation with hostile miners and were attacked by a superior force. Federal troops are pursuing the attackers.

TALKATIVE MAN CLEARED IN BOY'S DEATH

Joseph F. Lamouett, who gave his address as No. 156 Putnam street, East Boston, was arrested at Salem today as a suspect in connection with the murder of twelve-year-old Henry P. McMahon. Lamouett's arrest followed his remarks in a lunch cart. Patrons said they overheard him say the police were on the wrong track in their probe of the boy's murder. He declared a woman was the assailant. Lamouett was released after investigation showed he could have had no connection with the murder.

It was announced today that blood stains were found on the clothing of Tony Costello, who is under arrest for another crime, by Dr. Boos, Harvard pathologist. Whether the blood is that of a human being will be determined by a more minute analysis.

Costello has disclaimed responsibility for the murder, but said he could "dig up" the man responsible.

YOUTH KNOCKED 25 FEET OFF ROOF BY BLOW

Waltham police are investigating a report that a local carpenter, working on the roof of a house with his sixteen-year-old son, became infuriated at the lad during an argument and struck him a blow that knocked him off the roof and caused him to fall twenty-five feet to the ground.

Complaint of the alleged occurrence came from residents of Brook Avenue, where it is said the blow was taken place. Inspector Peter Tracy has been assigned to the case.

According to the complainants, Sandy Smith, a carpenter living on Turner street, Waltham, was working on a roof on Brook avenue with his son Eugene, when they became engaged in some kind of an argument during the course of their work. It is said, and Smith finally became enraged and struck him a violent blow with his fist.

Stunned by the blow, Eugene fell backward, it is said, rolled down the steep-slanting roof, and fell to the ground, twenty-five feet below.

Smith seemed alarmed by the consequences of the act, it is said, and rushed to the ground. Eugene is said to have been unconscious when his father reached him. Smith thereupon took him home.

FRIEND OF CARUSO BACK FROM ITALY

New York, Aug. 8—Rev. Joseph Tonello, one of the most intimate friends of Enrico Caruso, arrived from Italy on the steamship Canopo Rosso. Fr. Tonello, who is seventy-one years of age, spent some of his time in Italy in visiting at the home of his late friend and in consoling the widow. He is at present stopping in New York City for a few days prior to his departure for his church in Los Angeles.

"Italy is a fine country, but I am glad to get back again to the old United States," was his greeting to customs officials on the dock.

BIG SHIPMENT OF FOREIGN COAL HERE

New York, Aug. 8.—The first large cargo—10,000 tons of foreign-mined coal to reach New York as the result of importers' efforts to stave off a fuel famine among public utilities corporations, was bought in today by the Italian steamer Cherca, from Barry, Wales. Because of threats of the United Transport Workers' Local No. 519 of the I. W. W. to refuse to unload the cargo, every movement of the vessel was shrouded in secrecy. No difficulty in recruiting a force to unload the vessel was reported by her officers.

PREDICTS END OF STRIKES IN WEEK

New York, Aug. 8.—A prediction that the rail and coal strikes would be settled within a week was made today by E. J. Hennig, assistant secretary of labor, in addressing the convention of the National Retail Dry Goods Association. He expressed belief that the next ninety days would bring the country its greatest era of prosperity.

TRY TO BREAK GUARD LINES IN INDIANA

Staunton, Ind., Aug. 8 (By International News Service).—Eight men early today tried to break the guard lines around State operated coal mines here. They were dispersed by four shots fired by a sentry whom they approached. No shots were fired in return.

NORTH END MISS FIRST ENTRANT FOR 'CHARMING GIRL' HONORS

CANDIDATE TO REPRESENT BOSTON AT BEAUTY MEET

The first entry in the Boston American's "most charming girl" tournament was made today.

She is nineteen-year-old Lenore Zim, of No. 58 North Margin street, Boston.

Miss Zim was nominated for the week's free trip to Atlantic City by Stephen Pierce, of No. 8 Hancock street, Boston. If the judges decide she is the most charming girl in Greater Boston, she will be given a free trip to Atlantic City early next month with her mother or some other person as chaperon, and all expenses of both will be paid for one week.

Judging from the photograph sent in by Mr. Pierce, Miss Zim radiates charm. Her photograph indicates that she is a fascinating young woman. Her friends say she has a remarkable personality.

NOT BEAUTY ALONE.

Girls who think of entering the tournament should remember that this is not a mere beauty contest. Some of the world's most charming women are not beautiful.

The Boston American is trying to locate the girl who answers this description and it wants all of its readers to help find her. The girl who is chosen will be named "Miss Boston" and will represent this city in the national beauty tournament which is to be one of the features of the great pageant to be held in Atlantic City September 6, 7 and 8. One girl will be sent from each of seventy-six of the largest cities in the United States and Canada and from this group of lovely femininity will be selected the most charming girl on the continent. She will be crowned "Miss America" on the last night of the pageant, amid scenes of splendor.

DANCE ON BOARDWALK.

On the last night of the pageant, when "Miss America" is chosen from the seventy-five fascinating girls, Atlantic City's famous boardwalk will be turned into a great dancing pavilion for a distance of twenty city blocks. Thirty bands will play for dancing. In addition there will be a wonderful exhibition of fireworks. The pageant is to be one of the greatest carnivals ever held anywhere.

The young woman upon whose shoulders falls the honor of representing Boston at this wonderful carnival in America's greatest watering place may also win a prize valued at $1,000. This prize, in the form of a Golden Mermaid, molded from solid gold, will be presented to the loveliest bathing girl taking part in the feature of the pageant. "Miss Boston" will be permitted to participate in the bathing girl procession, and judging from the number of fascinating girls seen at the beaches in Boston and vicinity this season, the young woman chosen to represent this city will interest the national judges the minutes they see her.

No favoritism will be shown in the selection of "Miss Boston." The Boston American doesn't care who wins. Leading men and women will act as judges. The person they pick as the MOST CHARMING girl in Boston or vicinity will be the one this newspaper will send to Atlantic City for what will probably be the best week's outing she ever had in her life.

GRAND BALL.

Every night during the pageant, where "Miss Boston" will be an honored guest there will be a continued round of gayety. On the opening night there will be a grand ball in honor of the MOST CHARMING girls sent to represent the seventy-six leading cities. They will be received by King Neptune and admitted to Court. Several other dances and a big vaudeville show will also be under way the same evening.

On the second night a rolling chair parade will be one of the features. Prizes will be awarded in this event. Another big vaudeville show will be given the second night as well as a marvelous exhibition of fireworks on vessels anchored a short distance from shore. This brilliant spectacle will be worth going many miles to see.

The Bathers' Revue will take place on the last night of the pageant followed by the award of the Golden Mermaid and selection of "Miss America." (What if Boston's most charming girl should win both of these coveted honors! She has an even chance with every girl competing.

FILL OUT COUPON.

In addition to these nightly events there will be all sorts of fun during the time, such as swimming and beat races, golf tournament, and the bathing, which is considered as good as anywhere in the country. All persons who has been knocked off their feet by a big wave at Atlantic City as it tumbled in froth on the beach knows what good sport it is. During the remaining day of her week's visit "Miss Boston" and her chaperon may spend their time as they wish. Many informal affairs have been arranged for their enjoyment.

MISS LENORE ZIM; "CHARMING GIRL" NO. 1.

All that is necessary to become an entrant in this great tournament is to fill out the coupon printed in the Boston American and send it with photograph to this newspaper. Any reader of the American who knows a CHARMING girl may enter her by filling out the coupon and sending her photograph. There are no other terms attached to this great offer. It doesn't cost a cent to enter. You may be the winner, so hurry your entry. The age limit is fourteen to twenty-five years.

Girls who haven't good photographs may obtain one free of charge for this tournament by applying at any of the following studios—Marlboro Studio, No. 164 Tremont street; Perham Studio, No. 165 Tremont street; Waid Studio, No. 168 Tremont street; Otto Sarony Studio, No. 146 Tremont street, Ye Craftsman Studio, No. 581 Boylston street; Bachrach Studio, No. 647 Boylston street; Notman Studio, No. 1736 Massachusetts avenue (Cambridge) and Champlain Studio, No. 161 Tremont street.

BABE DESERTED BY MOTHER AND FATHER

Providence, Aug. 8—There's a little baby down to Mrs. Annie Asp's boarding house at Warren, a little baby among strangers and nobody seems to care, at least not its mother and father.

It represents a tragedy in this twisted thing called life, even though it kicks and chuckles and "goo-goos."

It came Sunday night with a man and woman. They asked for a night's lodging and were shown a room.

Early the next morning the man left saying he would be right back. He didn't return. The woman cried, then taking the baby's clothes told Mrs. Asp she was going to sell them to buy food for the baby. She left and also disappeared.

While police hunt its parents the nameless baby smiles just as if it hadn't been abandoned among strangers.

DORCHESTER WIFE TRIES SUICIDE

Mrs. Hannah Blume, aged twenty-nine, wife of David Blume of No. 3 Wales street, Dorchester, is dying at the City Hospital after she tried to take her life by gas poisoning, the police say.

The woman went to her bed chamber and an hour later she was found unconscious by her husband. A gas jet in the room was turned wide open. She was rushed to the City Hospital.

The husband has told the police that he can give no reason that would prompt the woman to take her life. She appeared in good spirits prior to going to her room.

Plays That Remain

SELWYN THEATRE—A crowded house and hundreds turned away, again tells the story of the sensational success of "Shuffle Along," which began the second week of its limited stay at the Selwyn Theatre last night.

TREMONT THEATRE—Last night began the second week of Lew Cohan's song and dance show, "Little Nellie Kelly," at the Tremont Theatre, where this latest of the string of Cohan successes is being presented by George M. Cohan's comedians, headed by Miss Elizabeth Hines.

NEW REVUE AT NORUMBEGA PARK

Musical comedy that compares favorably with many higher-placed and higher-priced productions is furnished by Hoyt's Revue, which is holding forth in the theatre at Norumbega Park this week. For the first three days the company is presenting a medley of music and nonsence known as "Hello Broadway." The performers are headed by Lew Brune, whose work as a comedian in various Savage productions is well remembered. The other principals furnish capable support. The bill will be changed on Thursday, when "Wine, Women and Song" will be offered. Mazie Lamette has achieved her desire to make the longest aerial slide ever attempted by any performer. Her latest thriller takes her from a tower on the roof of the theatre out over the water to the opposite bank of the Charles River.

BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE—A picture feature that furnished plenty of excitement is offered at the popular Bowdoin Square Theatre and is entitled "Fellow Men and Gold," a Goldwyn product which introduces adventure of the thrill type in which the audience was taken on a trip of romance, fights and life on the high seas by men who went in search of the yellow metal.

JAZZ BAND HEADS BILL AT KEITH'S

When Ted Lewis puts his battered top hat on the back of his head, winks at the members of his jazz band and commences to blow air into either his saxophone or clarinet the people in the audience forget all about the heat and do nothing else. All they can do is laugh, and that is just what the audience at Keith's does. A few years ago Ted was leader of a dance orchestra at Rector's cafe in New York. Now he is one of the biggest headliners on the Keith circuit and he deserves his position. His jazz band is undoubtedly the best in the business. And he is not sparing of his encores either. He gives the audience nearly all it wants.

Miss Juliette Dika runs the headliner a close race for first honors. Her songs are English and French and her dresses are gorgeous.

Snow, Columbus and Hector dance well; Ryan and Webber and Ryan are entertaining and the rest of the bill is quite up to the mark.

BIG FIREWORKS SHOW AT BRAVES FIELD

With many sensational added features "Scrappin' the Navy" will be given once more at Braves Field by the International Fireworks Company of New Jersey on Wednesday evening, August 16. In addition to the big naval bombardment and the fireworks display, there will be shown the sensational collision of two railroad trains coming head on, a three round boxing bout, fire worked, Fire and Flames, showing a burning building, and the Eruption of Mount Vesuvius. There will be one performance only, on Wednesday August 16.

NEW SHOW AT WILBUR IS BIG HIT

By FRED J. McISAAC,
Dramatic Editor

"Find 'em, fondle 'em, fool 'em, forget 'em."

That's the motto of Eddie Buzzell, the sophisticated sap in "Love and Kisses."

This cynical saw is a sample of the crisp, snappy and explosive dialogue which distinguishes the latest thing in musical plays, now at the Wilbur.

Without the prestige of a New York success or the reputation of a celebrated producer to sponsor it "Love and Kisses" seemed to have whanged a four-base hit last night.

BEAUTIFUL GIRLS.

It was a hot night, and I didn't know anything about the show, and to tell the truth didn't expect much, but the sweet and guileless little story hadn't been running along more than a few minutes before it had me.

The most beautiful young girls were continually running on and off, and the most entertaining dialogue was going on, and the dancing specialties were astonishingly good.

They do say that a lot of fine actors have been out of work in New York, and certainly a lot have been hired for "Love and Kisses." It's a big cast and there isn't a flat tire in the outfit.

This fellow Buzzell came out of vaudeville, and he is going to help musical comedy, where the comedians are all decrepit—or nearly all. He plays a small town youth who thinks he's acquainted with all the latest slang and all the customs of a great city, and he manages to be funny without being grotesque. He also succeeds surprisingly in scenes that approach heroic pathos.

LEADING WOMAN A FIND.

Another find is Helen Ford, the leading woman, playing a variation of Cinderella, who bakes cookies and finally owns a cookie factory. Miss Ford is a very big-hatted personality, winsome and magnetic. She sings sweetly and dances prettily, and acts fairly well if she has got a little lisp.

Louise Allen is another dainty darling in this show, and very clever she is, too. A first-class funmaker. Then there is Bertes Beaumont, a Greenwich Village vamp with Oriental ideas of trimmings. She goes over big. Assisting Buzzell in the laugh business is Russell Mack, who has a lot of personality himself and can step considerable.

The book of "Love and Kisses" is one of the best in years and the clever company makes the utmost of it. It was written by Daniel Kusell. The score by Harry Von Tilzer is, unfortunately, not worthy of the book. It tinkles along tunefully enough, but there isn't any particular number which sends audiences away humming and whistling like "Every Cloud Has a Silver Lining" or "Love Nest." The only blessed thing this show needs is a couple of song hits, but they are vital.

PARK THEATRE—Tennyson's sublime poem, with its sensational story of tremendous sacrifice by the virtuous noblewoman, Lady Godiva, in pictured photoplay reverently and elaborately treated, and the famous comedian, Tom Wise, in a rollicking funk romance, "Father Tom," form the very distinctive and pleasing program presented at the Park. Native patrons like it, too.

The ride of Lady Godiva through the turbulent countryside of England formed a lasting sacred English legend which inspired Britain's greatest poet laureate to perpetually commemorate it. M. Wie's unctuous and genial personality invests the character he portrays with special delight, and the dramatic plot is greatly heightened by the charming humor of its leading personage as well as the plausible events of the story.

BOSTON THEATRE—Blaine Hammerstein, in "Under Oath," at the Boston Theatre, is an unusually good picture. The play, which is well acted and photographed, tells a story of two strong characters fighting on against the other in a war between the new rich and an established aristocracy. The vaudeville, headed by Fiszer and Hurst, is well varied.

FREE STATERS' ADVANCE ON REBELS SLOW

Dublin, Aug. 8 (By International News Service)—Free State troops advancing southward through Kerry from Dingle Bay are encountering stubborn opposition north of the Kenmare river, according to advices received today. There has been hard fighting east of Waterville.

The cable station at Waterville has been closed or wrecked, crippling cable communication between the United States and all northern Europe.

Eamonn De Valera was said to be moving northward with his followers, giving rise to a report he was attempting to reinforce the Republican rebels in Kerry. The battle line now lies west of Rathkeale, Broadford, Askeaton and Ballingarry.

The advance of the Free State troops averages from one to two miles a day. The bad condition of the railway lines and highways explains the slowness.

Irish Fighting Ties Up Cable Service

New York, Aug. 8—Cable communication between the United States and Great Britain, France, Germany and all the rest of Northern Europe, was practically at a standstill today owing to interruption of the Commercial Cable Company's service by Irish Republican irregulars.

AUG. 26 DATE OF SWIMMING CARNIVAL

Swimming girls, attention!

Here's the news you've been waiting for.

The annual water carnival of the Boston American to determine who is the champion girl swimmer of New England will be conducted in Charles River Basin, Saturday afternoon, August 26.

Any girl or woman may enter the championship swimming race by merely filling out the coupon printed in the Boston American. No fees will be charged either to take part in the event or for the public to witness the fun. Everything will be free. The water carnival will be conducted by the Boston American for the sole purpose of giving everybody a good time.

MAIL YOUR COUPONS.

Come on, girls! Fill out the entry coupon and mail it to the Swimming Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass., and then wait for the big day to arrive. In the meantime it would be advisable for you to practice daily at your favorite beach or lake because there will be some unusually good swimmers in the race.

Among the girls who have already signified their intention of entering this year's championship race is Miss Olive Holland of Wollaston, who won the race during the last three years and who established a record for the course two years ago. Miss Holland is twenty years of age and has a marvellous physique, due to her constant swimming. She says she is swimming even better than last year and asserts that if she is beaten this year her opponent will have to "go some."

Miss Holland is using the "flutter kick" and crawl stroke again this season. She believes it is the best combination for speed. Last year she used it to such advantage that she won easily, being more than 200 feet ahead of her nearest competitor at the finish. After going into the lead she kept it.

FIVE LEADING PRIZES.

But don't let Miss Holland scare you, girls. There will be five fine prizes for the first five girls who finish and any one of them will be well worth the effort. In addition every girl who finishes will be presented a dandy medal as a souvenir of the occasion.

And think of the fun you will have, girls! You'll have the pleasure of competing against the best girl swimmers in the six New England States, and of hearing the cheers of 150,000 spectators who will line the beautiful Charles River Esplanade as you glide through the water to the finish.

The distance for the swim will be one mile. The girls will start from the float of the Union Boat Club, West End, near the point where the river makes a wide curve in its course to the sea. They will swim half a mile up river toward Harvard bridge, round a stake boat and then swim back to the starting point. This course will enable everybody who desires to see the race to secure a vantage place, without being crowded.

MOTHERS INVITED, TOO.

Every possible convenience for the girl swimmers will be arranged. Capable matrons will have charge of their dressing tent near the starting point. The tent will be roped off, assuring absolute privacy for the swimmers. Parents need have no fear about their daughters entering the contest. The Swimming Editor invites mothers to accompany their daughters to assist them in preparing for the race on the day it takes place.

Thirty or more husky lifeguards from the various beaches of Greater Boston will patrol the course in rowboats during the time the girls are in the water. There will be absolutely no danger to any of the girls who participate in the swim. If a girl should become tired or incapacitated she would be immediately assisted from the water by the lifeguards and returned to the starting point.

Every girl is to be examined by a physician before she enters the water. The doctor will determine whether she is in proper physical condition to take part in the swim.

THREE-TIME WINNER AGAIN IN RACE

OLIVE HOLLAND

Miss Holland, a Wollaston girl who has for the past three years won first prize in the Boston American's race for women and girls in the Charles River Basin, is again an entrant for this year's competition, which will be held on Saturday, August 26. She is in the pink of condition, and says anybody who beats her must "go some."

Entry for Girls' Championship of New England Swimming Race Under Direction of Boston American

Full Name .....

Address .....

Age .....

Telephone .....

Mail to Swimming Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer Street, Boston, (8) Mass.

No girl will be permitted to participate unless she is passed by the physician. Nurses will be in attendance to assist if their services are needed.

Although the girls' swimming race will be the chief attraction at the big carnival several other features are to be arranged, including exhibitions of diving by clever mermaids and brawny lifeguards.

Just clip the coupon, girls, and send your entry early.

DO IT NOW while the spirit moves you. And ask all your girl friends who swim to join you, too. The more, the merrier.

It's going to be a BIG TIME and you'd better plan to be there.

JILTED, BOSTON DIVORCEE IS DYING FROM POISON

TWO-YEAR ROMANCE REVEALED

Girl Seeks Death When Doctor Plans Flight to Forget Her

Chicago, Aug. 8.—Discouraged and hopeless because the man she loved told her he was going to California and do his best to forget her, twenty-three-year-old Lydia Murreau Kantor is probably dying in a local hospital from the result of self-administered poison.

She is the daughter of a former Boston diamond broker. She receives a liberal monthly allowance from the estate of her father.

The girl drank the poison in her apartment at No. 4142 Sheridan road. Then she calmly walked the floor, back and forth, hour after hour, waiting for it to take effect.

At the hospital she was asked why she had attempted to kill herself. Reaching under her pillow she drew out something in her hand and said softly:

"That's why."

In her hand was a photograph of Dr. Maurice S. Mazel, house physician in a downtown hotel.

Nearly two years ago the girl met the doctor. She was at that time the wife of Abraham Kantor, to whom she was married in 1920. From the moment she met Dr. Mazel, however, her affection for her husband vanished, she said, and in the Fall of last year she obtained a divorce.

Her dream of romance continued after that, without a break, until last week. Then one night Dr. Mazel hinted that he must leave her. She had hardly taken his remark seriously, however, and did not realize that she must say good-bye to him until he came to her apartment with his mother.

"His mother told me I could never marry her son," said the girl. "She said, 'It's too bad. I love you. You are a wonderful girl. But it can never be.'"

Wenham Tea House Mecca of North Shore Society Folk, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN

QUITE the most attractive place along the North Shore of a Saturday afternoon during the Summer is the little tea house in Wenham Village. Society flocks there from all over the shore, and especially those who have been spectators of the Saturday polo matches at the Myopia Hunt Club which is a mere two miles away.

Outside the little white cottage with green blinds is a cute little sign, "The Tabby Cat and the Tea Kettle." At the door one is greeted by some charming hostess, for different ladies along the shore take this duty on different days. There is a choice of taking tea under the spreading trees on the lawn or on the screened porch or inside where one end of the place is fitted up as a very attractive gift shop. Some of the younger girls on the shore are in charge of serving tea.

I understand that on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons, this job belongs to Miss Miriam Fenno, whose engagement to John Simpkins was recently announced. This last Saturday, Miss Fenno was in the midst of an admiring group of friends who were all showering congratulations and good wishes on her. She looked very lovely in a simple gown of blue gingham, which matched her dark blue eyes. Miss Fenno has unusually lovely coloring, for with those blue eyes she has very black curly hair.

With a gay party under the trees were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wigglesworth of Manchester. Mrs. Wigglesworth, who was Isabella Councilman before her marriage, was in tan with touches of henna, and a large floppy hat of the same colors.

Later in the afternoon after the polo, Fred Rhodes and his son, A. Whitney Rhodes, came with friends from the Oceanside Hotel. Magnolia, where they have been staying this Summer, while Mrs. Rhodes and her daughters, Miss Helen and Miss Priscilla, are traveling in Europe. Miss Helen Rhodes, by the way, is to be one of next Winter's "debbys" and it is said that many parties are planned for her. She graduated this past Spring from the Winsor School where her sister, Miss Priscilla Rhodes, is still studying.

MISS DOROTHY NEYHART

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adnah Neyhart of Redgate Farm, Framingham. Miss Neyhart had a prominent part in the last Vincent Club show. She played recently in the tennis tournament at Swampscott.

THERE has been much excitement the past week over the North Shore tennis tournament held at the Tedesco Club, Swampscott. The finals, which were played off Saturday, resulted in Marchesa Ferranti winning the women's singles, Nat Niles the men's singles, Mr. and Mrs. Nat Niles the mixed doubles and Messrs. Porter and Bidwell the men's doubles. Very hard games of tennis were played, with a large gallery looking on each day. Among the prominent girl players of the week was Miss Dorothy Neyhart of Framingham Centre.

NAVAL FLEET ARRIVES IN NEWPORT

Newport, Aug. 8.—The first part of the Atlantic fleet steamed into the outer harbor early today.

In addition to ten submarines, the following ships are anchored here:

Destroyers: J. Fred Talbot, Curtiss, Mahan and Maury.

Battleships: Rochester (the flagship) Wyoming and Arkansas.

Aviation ships: Wright, Mohave and Shawmutt.

Mine-sweepers: Lark and Mallard.

Tugs: Zireo and Contacook.

Fulton (the motor ship); Relief, hospital ship; Prometheus, repair ship.

The fleet is in command of Commander-in-Chief Hilary P. Jones.

"NELLIE KELLY" GIRL MODEL AT WETHERN'S

Today and tomorrow afternoon a promenade will be held at Wethern's by one of the young ladies of the "Little Nellie Kelly" company. She will "model" beautiful Paris millinery creations obtained by the store representatives recently returned from Europe. This is believed to be one of the largest collections of real model hats ever exhibited in Boston.

JOHN MITCHELL, who has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Mitchell of "Glendyne," Manchester, started back for his home in Cuba last Wednesday. The last few days of his visit were one round of festivities, and his parents had a large house party for him. His guests included Mr. and Mrs. Everett Fabyan of Boston, Richard Sears, Jr., E. V. R. Thayer of Lancaster, Alfred Hoyt of New York, Miss Adele Ryan and Miss Annette Tilford of New York, Miss Gertrude Conaway and Miss Margaret Thayer of Philadelphia.

The Mitchells gave a large dinner party on the evening of their arrival. The next day the Andrew Carnegies of "Seawold," Manchester, gave a luncheon, and in the evening they were entertained by the Preble Motleys at dinner in Beverly Farms. The climax was the next day when they were entertained at luncheon by the Reginald Boardmans before a dance at "Glendyne."

The dance was given by Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, 2nd, who was Miss Naneen Mitchell, a sister of John Mitchell. On the last day of the house party, the Bayard Warrens entertained them at "Barberry Hill," Prides, at luncheon, and Miss Corinna Higginson had a picnic supper for them on the beach off Pride's Crossing. After supper, they all went to "Round Hill Farm," the home of Mrs. John Caswell and Miss Elizabeth Caswell, and spent the evening playing games and dancing.

Needless to say, Mr. Mitchell will be sadly missed by his many friends on the shore, but I understand that he did not feel able to remain away longer from his plantation.

FROM Newport comes news of the sale to be held in the Summer home of Mrs. Lawrence Lewis Gillespie on August 19 for the benefit of the New York Association for the Blind. Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont is to have charge of the tea table, and I suppose that Miss Eleonora Sears will be in evidence there, as she is now visiting that lady. Some of the prominent members of the committee for this worthy object are Princess Miguel de Braganza, Mrs. Craig Biddle, Mrs. Philip Rhinelander, 2nd, Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice, Mrs. J. Stewart Barney, Mrs. Gillespie and Mrs. Belmont.

THERE is quite a large gap to be felt in society circles down Nahant way because the Vittorio Orlandinis, who have been living with Mrs. Orlandini's father, Edward C. Johnson, during the past two months, left last week with their little children, Mr. Edward and Miss Laetitia Orlandini, for North Hadley, Canada, to be gone a month. Miss Laetitia, who is twelve years old and a splendid equestrienne, will be sadly missed along the bridle paths in Nahant where she is to be seen daily with the riding master and numerous other wee tots.

WORLD WAR MEN TO CONVENE IN SEATTLE

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 8.—Thousands of former service men, members of Veterans of Foreign Wars from every State and a number from foreign lands, will invade Seattle for the encampment of the organization August 14 to 19. Colonel T. L. Huston, part owner of the New York Yankees, is mentioned as a candidate for commander-in-chief.

M'CORMACK NOT COMING TO U. S. UNTIL 1923

By FRED J. McISAAC.

John McCormack will not be heard in America this Fall and Winter. It is possible that the Irish tenor may return in the Spring for a very short tour, but that is all.

As McCormack is the greatest drawing card in concert today, and as managers have been in the habit of arranging their entire concert season around him, this announcement made to me in a private letter from D. F. McSweeney, his friend, companion and associate manager with Charles L. Wagner, will be a bombshell.

Mr. McSweeney is at present in France. He writes: "I have just spent a week with McCormack at Stow on the Wold Gloucestershire. This is not John McCormack's English estate as some papers put it. He has simply rented the place for the season from the family of the late Sir John Murray Scott.

LOOKS MUCH BETTER.

"John looks better than he has for a long time. He spends two hours a day, Sunday's excepted, shooting rabbits and—when the gamekeeper is not looking—an occasional partridge. He is as rabid for tennis as ever and a set or two is a daily event.

"When I met him at the Savoy Hotel, the day I arrived from America, I was agreeably surprised to see how well he looked. Calling my attention to the shrinkage of the waist line with evident pride, he inquired, 'Do you suppose they will give me a job in the movies when I go back?'

"Regarding his voice. His friends may be assured it is as good as ever. He could give a concert tomorrow, but he won't. He has made up his mind to take a good long rest. Two days after my arrival in London I heard him sing for the first time since his illness. He sang four songs at a reception given in his honor by Herbert Hughes. Three leading London critics, Ernest Newman, Robin Legge and Frank Trevor, and three composers, Frank Bridge, Arnold Bax and John Ireland, were present. 'One of the critics remarked to me, 'After listening to such a lot of poor singing all season it certainly is good to get one's ears rinsed out in this way.'

RETURNS IN MARCH.

"McCormick will spend the month of August in Ireland, September and October he will spend at the shooting lodge of General Jack Stewart from Montana in the North of Scotland.

"Then he will go back to the musical kindergarten once more. Three hours a day, three days a week he will be coached in the lieder classics by Sir George Henschel, the foremost living interpreter of the works of such masters."

"After a sojourn in the South of France he will return to the United States late in March, 1923."

28,000 LOST IN TYPHOON AT SWATOW

Hong Kong, Aug. 8 (By the Associated Press).—The toll of the typhoon on August 2 at Swatow has mounted to 28,000 dead.

Coffins are lacking to provide burial for many and the bodies are being interred in sacks.

The new figures on lives lost, which almost triples the previous estimates, were contained in a circular issued today by the Hong Kong branch of the Swatow Chamber of Commerce. The circular stated that 28,000 bodies of victims of the disaster had been recovered. Benevolent societies attempting to care for the dead have been forced to use mattress covers and old bags as coffins for the myriad dead could not be provided.

FRENCH DEMAND GERMANS BE BOUND FAST

Lyndon, Aug. 3 (By the Associated Press).—Drastic measures of financial control in Germany are provided for in Premier Poincare's draft of the conditions under which France is willing that Germany shall have a moratorium to the end of the year.

The conditions, which are to be considered by the financial committees of the allied conference today, are understood to include exploitation of the German customs, mines, railroads and forests, control of the Reichsbank and the German Bank-note Press, and supervision of foreign currencies as well as exports and imports. All these would be under the active control of international committees sitting in Berlin.

German industries would have to surrender to the allies 26 per cent. and in some cases much more, of their capital, while, as a major measure to enforce compliance the occupation and exportation of the Ruhr coal field would be kept in reserve.

A British diplomat remarked it would require the "enthronement of Jove in Berlin" to insure execution of the demands.

BOSTON PROFESSOR HONORED BY FRANCE

New York, Aug. 8.—The Cross of the Legion of Honor has been awarded to Dr. A. E. Kennelly, professor of electrical engineering at Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, for distinguished service as exchange professor in engineering to the French republic.

BEST NIFTIES QUOTED AT $1 PER

TODAY'S WINNING NIFTIES: (Have you tried one?)

In a race with time why would a singing master win?

Because time flies and a singing master beats time.—Lucy O'Neil, No. 666 Locust street, Fall River.

Why are clergymen like usurers?

Because they take great interest in prophets.—Mrs. Maud M. Hobein, No. 374 Howard street, Lawrence.

Why is a dress like a rocking chair?

It's often satin.—Helen M. McNeff, No. 263 Main street, Everett.

You'd better try one. A winning NIFTY wins a DOLLAR.

WAITER SKIRTING CONTINENT AFOOT

New York, Aug. 8.—Skirting the continent in an airplane is comparatively easy. Skirting the continent by "shank's mare" is not so easy. But Leonard Day of San Francisco, who recently arrived here, says "it's easy if you've the 'dogs' hold out."

Leonard's "dogs" are holding out and he expects to make the entire trip without much difficulty. Before starting out on the hike which has won him nation-wide notoriety, Day was employed as a waiter in a San Francisco restaurant.

PASTEUR TREATMENT FOR MAD DOG VICTIM

Gerald Arthur, 13 years old, of No. 172 Auburn street, Cambridge, is undergoing the Pasteur treatment for rabies today, as a result of a wound inflicted on him by a supposedly mad dog, which attacked him on Auburn street, near his home. The dog, owned by James Intimarello, of No. 23 Valentine street, was killed by a policeman and its head was sent away for examination. Four-year-old Anna Cusack of Auburn street was also bitten by the animal.

GIRL THOUGHT DEAD GETS HER CLOTHES

Hyannis, Aug. 8.—While life guards and police were patrolling the West Beach bathing shore here for the body of a woman supposed to have been drowned, the woman drove up in an auto and entered the bathhouse to claim some clothes she had left there.

Word of the drowning spread when the clothing was found in the bathhouse. It was supposed that their owner had gone beyond her depth unnoticed.

The woman explained that she had stayed out after the bathhouses closed and had spent the night in the home of friends.

MARION DAVIES in Marie Corelli's The YOUNG DIANA

BEFORE your eyes a lovely girl ages into dreary, unloved spinsterhood. Before your eyes the sun's rays, conquered by science, smooth out the wrinkles, turn gray hair golden, bring back youth's glorious beauty. In the dual role of this great picture Marion Davies does the greatest acting of her career, and Joseph Urban has contributed his most beautiful settings. "It is the most lavishly mounted picture Cosmopolitan has ever offered," says Motion Picture News.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

Edison reads probably more than any other busy business man in America. He reads, too, not only with his eye, but with his brain.

He was flattering enough to tell me that he read a lot of my stuff, that it was usually to the point, and that it helped to stimulate thinking.

Edison is much better as an inventor of electrical devices than as an inventor of currency systems.

I have just received from Edison the following note, in his own handwriting:

"Forbes: The reason you think so is because you do not understand what I have written. —EDISON."

Mr. Edison has so often been right when others have been wrong, and he has such a faculty for sensing new trend before others sense things, that one hesitates to contradict him in any cocksure way.

I hope to have the opportunity to sit down and get from Mr. Edison his currency-reform proposals. I have found it an inspiration to talk with him.

More from Walter S. Gifford, young vice-president of the American Telephone Company:

"A boy asked a man what sort of work he did in a company. The man was a high executive. He replied that people came in to see him, stated what they wanted to know, and then he referred them to the proper department. The boy said he understood perfectly, because in his father's business they had an usher—he sat at the desk out in the hall—who did just that.

"An executive should always be available to his immediate subordinates. This is more important than that he should be accessible to people outside of his organization.

"He will welcome intelligent opposition and suggestion from anyone and be quick to surrender a prejudice. While he will impress his personality on his organization, he will not insist that everything be done his way, as this will kill initiative and enthusiasm and make his organization a mere machine.

"I feel sure that the time used or even used up in conference is very much worth while. Where large matters are at stake and where military authority and discipline are not required, the only safe and efficient way to determine policies is to confer deliberately and at length. Of course the head of the organizations must finally decide, and after deciding act with firmness and confidence.

Wall St. Gossip

MALLE & STIEGLITZ—"We feel that independent stocks such as Lackawanna, Republic, Crucible and Bethlehem are a purchase the minute any evidence develops as to termination of the coal strike."

A. A HOUSMAN & CO.—"We believe that the present affords an excellent opportunity to make discriminating purchases of stocks, particularly among the steels, equipments and rails."

PRINCE & WHITELY—"Higher prices indicated for this week in the rails, equipments and public utilities."

ADDITION TO New York Stock Exchange building will be ready for occupancy about November 1. 60 per cent. of available rental space already taken.

WOOLWORTH now pays $8 regular and $3 extra cash dividend and a 20 per cent. stock dividend is being considered.

KRESGE is on a 7 per cent. basis and is expected to out a stock melon.

MONTGOMERY WARD earned $1,200,000 in June, against a deficit of $2,600,000 in the same period last year.

MARSHALL FIELD & CO.'S wholesale distribution of drygoods last week was less than last year, but orders from road salesmen were ahead.

MANY SEE an attractive railroad group at this time in the northwestern roads. St. Paul, Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Chicago & North Western.

LEADING BROKERAGE exponent of Dow-Jones averages declares action of Crucible indicates low of only 90¾ on any reaction it may suffer. Street is reiterating that the company is going to issue new stock at par.

AMERICAN INTERNATIONAL break reflected persistent weakness in International Mercantile Marine issues of which it has large holdings.

MOTOR STOCKS still show that the financial community believes this group is lost much of its speculative flavor since peak of automobile production for year has passed.

RECENT ACTION of Western Electric Company in calling its outstanding 7s, 1925 for redemption at 102 on October 1 next is another evidence of prevailing ease of money.

COTTON FUTURES ARE SOLD LOWER

Cotton futures weakened generally in New York. Quotations were 18 to 26 points lower, August sold at 30.50, off 13; October, 30.56, off 26; December, 30.45, off 32; January, 30.40, off 35.

New York Stock Exchange Prices Irregular with New Highs Set in Many Issues

MOTOR ISSUES WEAK WITH RAILS UP

New York Stock Exchange prices were irregular after new 1922 highs had been set in many issues, notably in rails. Interest renewed at 3½ per cent., then went to 4. Motor issues were weak. Profit-taking caused much irregularity.

Carriers set new highs for the year as follows: Chicago & Northwestern, up 2¼ at 84½; Pere Marquette, a point at 38½; Delaware & Lackawanna, at 122¾; Great Northern preferred, ¾ at 87½; Union Pacific, ½ at 145; North American Company, ⅝ at 74⅜.

Other new 1922 highs were made by American Locomotive, up ⅝ at 121½; American Car & Foundry, up ⅝ at 122; Baldwin, up 2⅛ at 105¾, and American Radiator, 2½ at 107.

Corn Products, after selling down to 113⅛, made a record high for all time at 116⅞.

Willys-Overland sagged 6⅝ at 39; 1¾ at 46⅝; and Studebaker, 1⅞ at 123⅝.

Mexican Petroleum lifted 1¼ at 174½, then sold down to 168. Royal Dutch was off 2 at 59¾. Pan-American "B" lost ⅝ at 73½.

International Corporation lost 3⅝ at 34⅜ to a new 1922 low.

Western Union went back 1¾ at 109; Marine preferred, 1¾ at 63½; and Mallinson 1¼ at 35⅞.

Goodyear Tire lifted 1¼ at 84 and Vanadium the same at 59¾.

Kresge lifted 2¼ at 162⅜ and Burns Brothers B 3½ at 150.

Northern Pacific added 1⅜ at 82. May Stores gained 2 at 128.

Railway Issues Are Feature in Bonds

Railway issues, especially the St. Paul group, again featured the bond market, which strengthened substantially on fairly active dealings. All the St. Paul issues except the 4's of 1934, soared 1⅛ to 1⅞ points. The 1934 maturities were up ⅝.

Chicago & Alton 2½'s mounted a point, with half of that gain being recorded by Canadian Northern 7's, Oregon Short Line refundings and Erie general 4's and Southern Railway general 4's. Invincible Oil 8's and Cerro De Pasco 8's up on ¼, were the outstanding industrial securities.

Mexican 5's were up 1⅜ on news that President Obregon had ratified the recently enacted international debt agreement. Brazil 6's and City of Sao Paulo 8's were up 1 to 1½, with smaller advances being made by Copenhagen 5½'s and the Dutch East Indies of 1947. French 8's and Yugoslav 7½'s were irregularly. Liberty issues held steady.

OLD COLONY BUYS MELROSE ISSUES

Melrose has sold $30,000 of various 4½ per cent. notes, maturing in each of the years 1932 and 1927 respectively, to the Old Colony Trust Company, at 100.705. Other bidders were: Arthur Perry & Co., 100.584; Edmunds Bros., 100.5159; Harris, Forbes & Co., 100.52; Estabrook & Co., 100.62; B. J. Van Ingen & Co., 100.468; Wise, Hobbs & Arnold 100.461; Sisson & Braun, 100.433; Eldredge & Co., 100.41; Watkins & Co., 100.398; R. M. Grant & Co., 100.385; R. L. Day & Co., 100.37; Blodgett & Co., 100.376; E. H. Rollins & Sons, 100.24; Merrill, Oldham & Co., 100.219; and Curtis & Sanger at 100.190.

NEW ENGLAND OIL PROFIT $1,556,034

Net profits of the New England Oil Refining Co., the principal subsidiary of the New England Oil Corporation, for the first six months of 1922 were, before providing for interest on funded obligations, depreciation and income taxes, $1,556,034, having netted a profit of 149,676 barrels of oil were shipped by the refinery to customers.

ADVANCE FOR CORN PRODUCTS MYSTERY

Interests of Corn Products declare they are puzzled over recent strength of the stock and that there are no developments to justify the rise. It is costing the company several thousand dollars more daily for coal and operating costs have also gone up as result of 5½per cent. advance in wages.

BANK INVESTMENTS HIGHER FOR WEEK

In week ended July 26, 800 leading member banks that report weekly to Federal Reserve Board increased their investments $25,750,000. Of this increase 65 New York banks accounted for $24,394,000.

BUTTE & SUPERIOR DEFICIT IS SHOWN

Report of Butte & Superior Mining Co. for three months ended June 30, shows deficit of $66,444, compared with loss of $184,850 in first three months of this year.

GREENE HAD NO CONFIDENCE IN SALESMEN'S BRAINS

EVERY MOVE IN HOOKING PROSPECTS REHEARSED

Judging by some of the instructions Henry Vincent Greene wrote and incorporated for the benefit of his salesmen in his little black book, the "Book of Promises," he looked upon his vineyard combers as an able array of what the world today terms "dumbbells."

"Stand squarely on your feet," wrote Henry, who learned to do that very thing jerking sodas in a Roxbury drug store, years before. "Don't slouch; look your prospect straight in the eye. If in attitude, gesture, voice or words you are the least bit apologetic the case is hopeless and you might as well quit."

The "Prophet" should have written the "quit" is hopeless and you might as well quit.

TOOK NO CHANCES.

As a "Prophet" who scorned the silver-haired, dignified bankers in the street called State, the boy who once cracked nuts for sundaes and who played ice cream nurse to the grubby youngsters who sought "a cone," Henry wanted his disciples to be the walrus' necktie when it came to representing him among the toilers. He didn't want his boys mistaken for the toilers. That would be ruinous to Henry's vanity.

"Remember," wrote Henry, "you have perfectly clear, legitimate, highly profitable and absolutely safe investments to offer."

More than 60,000 buyers of stock in Henry's companies suing the "Moses of Finance" for $14,000,000 have a different idea about his "clear, legitimate, highly profitable and absolutely safe" the investments were that Henry's boys, who were apt to "slouch" and grow "apologetic," offered.

THOUGHT BENCHMEN "DUMB."

So dumb did Henry believe the boys who carried about his "Book of Promises" that he had to take a kindergarten attitude toward them to make the grade into their brain cells.

"Now, Mr. Salesman," write the boy who learned his little book at the "Fountain of Knowledge," which he sponged after every service of soda, "it is obviously useless to explain an investment to a person without money."

Henry probably had guards on deaf and dumb asylums to keep the boys from going in and wasting time on a canvass of the inmates, or maybe he thought if they got in they'd be locked up. Anyway, he further instructed the highly intelligent salesmen, by adding:

"It is therefore necessary that each person approached be first 'qualified.'

"If other words, you must find out whether or not the prospect has enough money to make the first payment on one unit of the amount of the minimum sale. When he admits he has the money, the battle is two-thirds won.

HELD PEOPLE STUPID.

"To get this information," continued Henry, who had evidently been delving into the output of De Maupassant or Dumas, or caught a stray word at the fountain, "takes what the French call FINESSE, which, translated into American, means brains plus courage."

It was Tom Watson, the famous Georgia senator, who, in giving a youth a recipe for successful public speaking, said: "Never underestimate the stupidity of the American people."

Somewhere Henry Vincent Greene, the ice cream scooping financier, must have read Tom's able words and applied them to his salesmen.

"We were so dumb," admitted one former deciple to the writer, "that many of us invested our commission in Greene's stocks."

"Don't slouch," said the "Prophet," sending the boys forth with his daily blessing, "but bring home the bacon."

TELEGRAPHERS ON BIG 4 MAY STRIKE

Cincinnati, Aug. 8.—Following the announcement that a strike ballot was being spread, a strike of telegraphers on the Big Four Railroad was said by members of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers in the Cincinnati terminal to be a possibility "within a few days." It was said the main cause for promulgating the strike ballot was the failure of a recent conference with the management regarding what is known as the "split trick," whereby operators are required to work eight hours in any twelve, in some cases being assigned to work four hours, be laid off for four hours, and then to work another four hours.

NO DISTURBANCE TO PHONE GIRL ALL THE TIME

Sally of the stony heart, otherwise Miss Seroponhi Beghian of Westland avenue, was too ill to appear in Roxbury Court today.

Hence, her persistent suitor, John Trejian of Tremont street, was not prosecuted for disturbing the peace. But he did pay $10 for attempting to bribe an officer.

The marble-hearted maiden complained that John kept her busy answering the phone. Morning, noon and night he kept the wires busy with messages of undying love, she said, and tried to make dates with her.

Policeman Herbert Haskins kept one of the dates. John tried to ease his way out of the law's grip by offering Haskins money.

Today the girl's mother said her daughter was too ill to be in court.

Attorney Kelly, appearing for John, said his client couldn't be held for disturbing the peace, because he had only disturbed one person, to wit, the stony-hearted maiden. Judge Hayden agreed and dismissed that charge.

COST $100 TO LET HOOTCH HELP DRIVE

John Colletti of Cary avenue, Chelsea, was arraigned before Judge Sullivan in Municipal Court, charged with driving a car while intoxicated. He was fined $100.

TOM McCARTHY, OLD-TIME BALL STAR, BURIED

Attended by the greatest assemblage of old-time baseball players and athletic followers, the body of Tom McCarthy, former big league player and coach, was laid at rest at Old Calvary Cemetery today.

St. Peter's Church, Dorchester, where solemn high requiem mass was celebrated, was filled to overflowing by the friends and relatives of the late baseball star.

Rev. John Coughlin, assisted by the Rev. Michael Dennahy and Rev. Francis Doyle, officiated.

The honorary pall bearers were Congressman James A. Gallivan, George W. Grant, president of the Braves; Councillor Francis J. W. Ford, Dan Comsedine, secretary of the Red Sox; Jeremiah Hurley and Thomas Rafferty, all close friends of the departed.

The pall bearers were John Campbell, Hugh Duffy, manager of the Red Sox; Edward McGonigle, John Dooley, T. F. McQuire and J. J. Kelly.

At the Old Calvary Cemetery prayers were read by Rev. David B. Watters.

POSTAL FIGURES IN HUB TAKE JUMP

Prosperity is just around the corner all ready to jump right into the lap of Boston. At least, this is the way the postal authorities figure it out. Postal statistics for July just completed at Washington show that the Boston postal district increased its busines for July of this year over last July by 15.17 per cent., and showed the third largest gain of all cities in the United States. Chicago was first, New York second and Boston third.

First—in Buffalo

On Main Street, in Buffalo, one of the busiest thoroughfares, 514 drivers of passenger cars, motor trucks and taxicabs were recently asked "Which gasoline do you prefer?" The count, duly attested by affidavits, showed the preference for Socony to be greater than for all other brands named. And all through New York and New England Socony stands out as the popular gasoline.

Check War Dept. ADS for Profit—

WHEN you see the spread eagle above an advertisement—reach for your pencil. Every War Department ad is packed full of profit opportunities for someone, and the best way to make certain of yours is to check them off when you first see the announcement.

Mark the items of particular interest to you, and then pass the advertisements along to your purchasing agent and to the men in charge of stocks in your store or plant. They know the values in War Department sales, and know their needs in supplies. Co-ordinate that knowledge to your gain by the simple expedient of routing these ads through your establishment.

Sales, either at auction or by sealed bid, are conducted virtually every day. "Dependable" includes everything you want in a gasoline

PROBABLY nine out of every ten Socony users would tell you that they use it chiefly because it is the most dependable—in every way, wherever and whenever they get it. And this is only one reason why Socony is the popular gasoline today.

Experienced motorists prefer dependable power, not an occasional flash of pep and a lot of carbon along with it. They also prefer the economy of greater mileage per gallon rather than the "economy" (?) of a low price.

Keep your tank filled with Socony Gasoline and you will get the most power uniformly that any gas can give you. You will get the greatest mileage week in and week out, wherever you happen to go. You can always depend on Socony. It is straight-distilled, pure and it always has the correct range of boiling points in the right proportion. (See diagram and Note.)

You can use Socony regularly because you can get it wherever you go.

STANDARD OIL CO. OF NEW YORK
26 Broadway

SOCONY IS ALWAYS DEPENDABLE BECAUSE IT HAS THE CORRECT RANGE OF BOILING POINTS

NOTE—"Boiling-point" is a common term in the gasoline testing laboratory. Most liquids boil (vaporize) at one uniform temperature. In the case of water this temperature, or boiling-point, is 212° F. However, every gasoline has many boiling points—a whole series or range of them in fact. It is this range of boiling points AND the proportion of each group of them (low, medium and high) that really determine the quality of a gasoline—its volatility, power and mileage-economy.

JACK CONWAY SAYS SHEVLIN'S EXPERIENCE WILL WIN BOUT

VETERAN MEETS WARD AT REVERE TONIGHT

By JACK CONWAY

We are standing pat on Eddie Shevlin to win over George Ward in their ten-round frolic at the Unity Club's show at the Revere Cycle Track tonight. Shevlin, one of the brainiest men in the ring, should manage to outscore his younger rival

Eddie Shevlin.

Ward is the toughest opponent Shevlin has met since he was defeated by Young Kloby at Lawrence, three years ago. The Roxbury man has had a picnic waiting over Jack Perry, Nate Siegal and some lesser lights. He has been aroused by the charge that he is not fighting live opponents, and readily agreed to clash with Ward, one of the foremost welterweights in the world.

The Bayonne, N. J. warrior won over Nate Siegal at Revere, and a few nights later easily outpointed Mickey Walker at Newark. He has also won over virtually all of the welterweight stars with the exception of Britton and Shevlin.

As a boxer Shevlin has only one superior in the opinion of this writer. We are referring to Jack Britton, a master boxer and a veteran of the grand old game of swat.

Shevlin Is Boxing on High Again

For a time early in the Summer it looked as though Shevlin had shot his belt as a fighter. He had been beaten twice by Jack Perry, a powerful puncher, but a very slow and awkward fellow. Shevlin attributed his slump to boxs and a general run down physical condition. He took a long rest and then did a smashing comeback. Perry was handed a decisive thumping which convinced the knockers that Dartmouth's boxing director was far from being an also ran as an active campaigner.

Charges were then made that Shevlin's victories were due to the fact he was picking his opponents. This caused Billy Henderson to announce that his protege was ready to clash with any legitimate welterweight.

Following a challenge from George Ward, latest sensation in the welterweight division, some of the wise men figured that Shevlin would dodge the issue. But he didn't. He came right out in the open and announced he was prepared to tackle Ward. Colonel Bob McKirdy then booked the match.

Jack Britton May Be Matched With Winner

Jack Britton, boss of our noble welterweights, may be seen in action with the winner. If Shevlin comes out in front, the affair would be staged in this city, while if Ward wins New York or Newark would be the scene of the conflict. Ward isn't very keen about meeting Britton in a no-decision match but he would like to get a shot at the title holder in a tussle where a decision could be rendered.

As for Britton, he is sure that Britton has slipped and that he would be able to wrest the welterweight crown from the Morgan gang.

Britton would agree to defend his championship in Boston or at Revere provided he was assured that veteran officials would have charge of the affair. Jack doesn't doubt his own ability to defeat all-comers in his class, but he does question qualifications of some of the young men who have been licensed as judges and referees by the Massachusetts Boxing Commission.

Dan Morgan recently told one of our Boston matchmakers that if some of the old-time referees were permitted to sit in as judges and provided a man of experience also had charge of affairs in the ring that Britton would not waste much time in signing to show here.

And after having seen some of the decisions handed down in Massachusetts during the past couple of years we do not blame Morgan and Britton for their stand in the matter.

If the Commission will take the proper action, a Britton-Shevlin match would be a certainty. This, of course, with the proviso that the Roxbury man wallops his way to a victory over Ward this p m.

Freddy Williams and Jones in Semi-Final Number

Freddy Williams of Dorchester and Burt Jones of Roxbury will mingle in the semi-final of the ten rounds. There will also be two eights. Billy Shane of Gloucester will collide with Young Navarro of Gloucester, while Joe Reardon of South Boston will try to dispose of Johnny Morello of East Boston.

Shevlin Has Been Bit by Victory Bug, Says Conway

W 47 — L 7

Jack Conway says: "When you and I are playing checkers together in some old folks' home Eddie Shevlin will probably be toppling over a new crop of young fellows who think they can fight. He appears to have Father Time's number, and wallops the old bird on the jaw any time he put in an appearance.

"Shevlin had staged his first retirement when we were fooling around with Spanish and such things at the High School of Commerce. And that was quite a few years ago. Then he did a come back, or rather showed the boys that he was still there as a fighting man. He's still going forward, and will probably be out there battling like a champion when you and I have decided we have done enough work on this side of the river.

"So we are standing by our guns and announce to old maids and broken down prescription writers that Shevlin, the veteran, will win over George Ward at Revere to night."

REVERE STAGES REVENGE RACE TOMORROW

Manager Butler will restage the Golden Wheel race tomorrow night. The announcement has brought joy to thousands of fans who were kept away from last week's race by the threatening weather.

Wednesday's contest has been termed the Golden Wheel Revenge as the original five starters, Wiley Carman, Chapman, Madonna and Verkeyn, will race.

Wiley won last week's race, but is certain of much keener competition. Carman and Chapman display a bitterness toward each other since last week. That should result in a spirited battle.

Madonna and Verkeyn were victims of hard luck last week by motor and bike trouble.

BROWN SIGNS TO BATTLE TRAVERS

Johnny Brown of Cambridge and Mickey Travers of New Haven have been matched to box ten rounds before the Paper City A. C., of Berlin, N. H., on Friday night.

Brown and Travers recently fought 12 fast rounds to a new draw in Portland, but this battle will be for a referee's decision, and the winner will lay claim to the New England featherweight title, for Chick Sales refuses to box anyone

BENNY LEONARD MAY FIGHT IN ENGLAND

New York, Aug. 8.—Benny Leonard dropped back into the old familiar town yesterday feeling very well, thank you, and about twenty thousand knockers to the good. Benjamin just returned from Michigan City, Ind., where he slammed Ever Hammer around for ten rounds and a fair quantity of maruma.

There is a strong rumor floating around that Benjamin is seriously considering crossing the bounding main and battling Ernie Rice, the English lightweight champion. That would mean a delightful trip and no possible exhibition to all but Ernie.

The sum offered the champion is said to be ten thousand pounds (money, not lead), which is not to be scoffed at when you are immersed in deep thought. Still, we are not to believe that our Bennie won't leave here, for there is a lot of nice gold in sight.

There isn't the slightest doubt that Leonard can get a bundle of greenbacks if he battles Charles White for the title. Mr. Cherokee had gone the champion a good clip some two and one-half years ago, but we did not believe that our Benjie will be anxious to make a match with Charley unless there are a million of folks that would see themselves beat some to see the lads in combat. Charley made a good showing around here in his last two fights and has recent history over Johnny Dundee helps his case.

MOLLA FAVORITE TO LAND TITLE

Although entries do not close until tomorrow, from the number received already, the women's championship of the United States that will begin at the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills on August 14, promises to be thoroughly representative. Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, who won the championship in 1915, 1916, 1917, 1918, 1920 and 1921, is favorite. Chief among her rivals is Mrs. May Sutton Bundy.

PRO GOLFERS WILL PLAY AT PITTSBURGH

Pittsburgh, Pa. Aug. 8.—The Oakmont Country Club is ready for the national professional golf championship tournament which opens Monday.

Groundskeepers have been working on the difficult course for weeks and their declarations that the battlefield is in perfect condition has received formal approval from the committee. Moderate rainfall during the past fortnight has kept the greens and fairways on edge.

Mandell Whips McCoy

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 8.—Sammy Mandell of Rockford, Ill., featherweight, defeated Johnny McCoy of Cleveland in an eight-round bout here last night.

CHARLIE WHITE PINS A 'K O' ON BARRETT

New York, Aug 8.—Charley White ended Bobby Barrett's aspirations to the championship when he knocked out Bobby Barrett in the third round at the Velodrome.

A right hand punch to the body dropped Barrett to the canvas. He dropped down so quickly that White almost fell over him. Up to that finishing blow Barrett did well. In the third, White began to get to him and three seconds before the end of the third Barrett was in a state of dissolution Barrett weighed 127 to 1/4 pounds for White 126 and 3/4 pounds.

Barrett threw a long right that missed to start hostilities. In that scramble he flattened White's nose with a left. Through this in the second he got over some corking rights. White waited until the second and got in some terrific hooks. And in the third White hooked a left that shook up Bobby. Barrett copped over a hard left hook. Barrett tried to sneak one over. White drove right to Barrett's body and Barrett was counted out

The show was opened with Jackie Wernser of England and Sammy Green. It looked bad for King George's subject when he stopped two rights with his chin and reclined on the canvas. He managed to fight hard enough to earn a draw

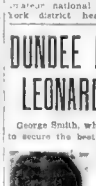
Charles McKenna, the former junior national 118 and New York district heavyweight champion, made his debut as a pro. Nicol. McKenna fought Tim a tough Irishman. Charley the L out of Kelly but it was a stony job. He hit Kelly everything in the dictionary and won easily.

Jack Wolfe of Cleveland and Pal Moore of Memphis fought the semi final of 12 rounds wh... while Wolfe weighed ... Moore came in at 115 pounds.

DUNDEE IS AFTER LEONARD BOUT

George Smith, whose occupation is to secure the best possible figure for Johnny Dundee, writes as follows:

"Johnny Dundee, the 130-pound champion of the world, wants to know why Benny Leonard will not keep his promise and sign for a match for the lightweight championship.



Johnny Dundee.

"Leonard, two months ago in answer to repeated challenges from Dundee, said he would give Dundee his chance as soon as he finished with Tendler."

Instead of keeping his word, Leonard came out and says he will fight the winner of the Charley White-Bobby Barrett go.

LAWLEY WILL PROVE HELP TO GREEN

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

In a group photograph appearing in the official program of the Princeton-Harvard football game last Fall appeared the likeness of a wavy-haired blonde young man. The caption above the photograph read: Reserves, coaches and the subscription giving the names of the coaches appearing in the group, indicated the wavy haired blonde's name as "Hawley."

Harvard partisans, studying the photograph and its descriptive subscription, vainly endeavored to recall a former Princeton player bearing such a moniker. Then a Dartmouth man came to their rescue and informed them that the typographer must have been in error for the photographer had caught the likeness of Hawley, not Holly, and the Hawley was none other than Jesse Hawley, former Dartmouth halfback, former Iowa head coach, and the man who with Larry Bankart and Clarke Tobin will comprise the board of advisory coaches at Hanover, N. MAKE UP OF AMERICAN DAVIS CUP TEAM STILL IN DOUBT

DISPUTE OVER NAMING OF YOUNG RICHARDS

In spite of the fact that plans have been made to have the personnel of the Davis Cup team announced by Thursday, it is a matter of common knowledge that the selection committee is no nearer a decision now than it was six months ago. They are pleased to know that Wallace F. Johnson and William M. Tilden II would be two of the players. That was as certain as sin itself.

However, it was so long certain that the choice of the men to compose the four-man team has aroused a storm of protest. Watson Washburn and Vincent Richards. It is all [illegible] among them, and rightly. The committee [illegible] with the result evidently as [illegible] Richards or Washburn, and Washburn, a [illegible] outcome of the two recent trials, in which each won [illegible] and [illegible] to register [illegible] defense leading toward [illegible] and Washburn on the part of [illegible] for these positions.

Vincent Richards

1—Richards' extreme youth and his utter lack of experience in Davis Cup competition.

2—The disinclination of the committee to impair Tilden's efficiency by naming him for both singles and doubles.

—The necessity of having Williams on the team that he can be used as alternate in the singles in the event of an accident to either Tilden or Johnston.

Desert Love

By JOAN CONQUEST

She trusted herself with a Sheik in the lonely desert—

WOULD YOU?

A beautiful and daring young English girl, brought up in a conventional home, burns her bridges behind her and lives in an oasis, far from her own race, for the love of an Arab chief. Begin Joan Conquest's most sensational story of a decade here today.

JILL looked at the East!

At her feet sat huddled groups of women, just bundles of black robes, some with discs about their necks, some with chains or golden crescents upon the forehead, all wearing the burko (face veil), covering the entire face with the exception of the eyes, and held in position between the eyebrows by the quaint tube-shaped selva, fastening it to the tarhah, the flowing black veil which nearly touches the ground behind, covers the head, and pulled down to the eyebrows leaves just the beautiful dark eyes to be seen, glancing up timidly—in this case—at the golden-haired, blue-eyed girl above them.

Men of different classes stood around, or squatted on their heels upon the ground, all in flowing robes of different coloring and various stages of cleanliness, some with heads covered in turbans, some with the tarboosh, others with the kahleelyah or head handkerchief, all chattering with the exception of the higher classes and the Bedouins, the latter clothed in white, with the distinctive thong of camel's hair wound about the head covering, arms folded and face passively serene, looking as though they had stepped right out of the Old Testament on to the fly-ridden, sun-baked station of Jamalisah; whilst vendors of cakes, sticky, melting sweets, and small oranges, called in and out of the crowd screaming their wares. Shouts of laughter drew Jill's attention to the other side of the station, where, with terms of endearment mixed with blood-curdling threats, a detachment of British soldiers getting ready to start on route for Suez were urging, coaxing, arriving at a hubbub that most obstinate of animals, the camel, got to its feet some time before midnight.

From them she looked at a group of native dwellings made of sunbaked clay. Small, squat buildings, looking in the distance like outhouses, with scarcely perceptible windows and flat roofs, given over to poultry. Near them the patient bullock did its monotonous round, drawing the precious water from the well with which to moisten the arid little patch of earth from which the fellah extracts the so very little necessary to him in his life.

A clump of slender palms, like forgotten scaffolding, stood out clear cut against the intense blue of the sky; the desert, that wonderful magnetic plain, stretched away in mile upon mile of yellow nothingness, until so minute as flies on a yellow floor, growing more distinct at every step, with solemn and exceeding great dignity strode a string of camels, each animal fastened by a rope to the saddle of the one in front, each apparently unconscious of its overwhelming burden,—as with heads swaying slightly from side to side with that air of disdain which the dons of Belgravia unsuccessfully tries to imitate when essaying to crush the inhabitant of Poplarina by means of long-handled lorgnettes resting on the shiny arch of her aristocratic nose. They reported without fail to the soft musical voice of the Arab seated cross-legged on the leader.

Then her eyes turned to the West.

To the mixed mob which had rushed from the Norddeutscher Lloyd at Suez, leaving the great liner to the wise few, while perspiring and querulous and altogether unpleasant, they had filled the little train which chuffs its way along the edge of the canal to Ismailiah, and through the dust and fly-laden miles to Cairo, where it turns its burden out to clamor and argue vociferously with the wily dragoman who would take a herd of elephants to "do" the Pyramids in one hour of the backsheesh proved substantial enough.

With absolute loathing she gazed at those with whom she had passed so many weary days on the return journey from Australia.

There were of a certain type of English women not a few, sunburnt, loud of voice, lean of breast and narrow of hip.

Their sisters, wiser and better endowed by nature, had remained on the liner, taking advantage of the empty conditions of the boat to repair the ravage done to complexion and wardrobe by the sizzling, salt-laden wind which had tortured them since Colombo had been left behind.

Two daughters and a mother stood disdainfully in the shade thrown by the indescribable waiting-room, the mother still laboring under the delusion that if you can't afford to send your girls properly wardrobed on a visit to relations in India, the next best method of answering husbands for them is to take them backing on a long sea voyage. For has it not been known that many a man driven to the verge of madness by the everlasting sight of flying fish, and the as enduring sound of the soft plop of the little bullnosed mullag, has become engaged to "a perfectly impossible person in the second class, you know," so as to break the deadly monotony of his surround ings.

They did not want to see Cairo or any other part of Egypt, for the East said nothing to them, even a rush view of the Pyramids failing to stir their shallow hearts; but they knew to a shade the effect on their less fortunate friends when in course of time they should murmur, "You remember, dear, the Winter we were in Syria."

Added to these there were raucous Australians, clumsily built guttural Germans, in fact the usual omnium gatherum unavoidable, alas! on a sea voyage, clothed in short skirts, shirt waists, squash hats, and thick boots as "they were going tramping about the sands," and each, of course, loaded with the inevitable camera which gives dire offence to many an Easterner of higher rank, who hates being photographed while going along with all the other "only's native" habits of the Westerner, who with the one word "nigger" describes the Rajah of India, the Sheik of Arabia, the Hottentot and the Chinky Minstrel.

Free for one day from the restraining manners of those others who at that very moment were doubtless returning thanks on deck to Allah for his manifold blessings in the shape of some few hours of perfect peace, a few men of different nationalities were either boisterously chaffing the less plain of their companions, or ogling the shrinking Eastern women crouching on the edge of the platform. Mr. Billings in fact, in tan canvas shoes and a frantic endeavor to find favor in the blue enlarged eyes of a certain slim black figure, was executing the very double shuffle which had "brought down" the second class dining saloon honored for the nonce by the presence of the first class, on the occasion of one of the periodical concerts habitual to sea life as known on board a liner.

Jill stood by herself!

Personally I consider as infinitely boring those descriptions written at length anent the past lives of the characters, male and female, which go to the building of a novel, so in as few words as possible will try to outline the years which had brought Jill Carden to the dreary task of waiting hand and foot upon the whimsies of a morose old woman of great wealth and still greater disposition to part with the smallest coin of any realm she might be travelling through.

Jill, an only child and motherless, had led a glorious care-free existence.

Adored by her father and her two friends, Mell, otherwise the Honorable Mary Bingham, pronounced Ream, of the neighboring estate, and Jack, otherwise Sir John Wetherbourne, baronet, of the next county, big brother to Jill and worshipper at the shrine of Mell. Jill was also loved by all who waited on her, and sought after by not a few on account of her great wealth, and had launched her way through seventeen years of life, to find herself suddenly minus father and money, with nothing left in fact but an estate mortgaged to the smallest pebble, and a heart-whole proposition from her chum Mell to "just come over the wall" and restart laughing her way as her adopted sister through the bit of life which might stretch from the moment of disaster to such time that she should find a life companion with whom she could settle down and live happily ever after!

But although Jill's head was outwardly covered with great balls of auburn hair, through which broke riotous, frivolous curls, the locks held a distinctly active and developed brain, which had acquired the habit of thinking deeply upon such subjects as woman, wife and motherhood.

Added to this, which is already quite enough to put an end at once to the life of any girl boy and up in conventional England, she had a heart as big as her outrageous longing for, and love of, adventure, neither of which happiness she had so far been able to satisfy.

As I have said this was quite bad enough, but through and above all, her whole rather exceptional being was desirous of love. Not the shape which consists in dressed dolls in a red room of imitation something at ten and sevenpence three farthings per yard, and under favorable circumstances to go up to a guinea a time, but the love that burns and might make exchange of look for look and word for word, kiss for kiss, in endeavors to pass itself off as that wonderful fire which radiant of love and hope, one of man's dream of heart and people of fiction. All grands romances in a showers with kisses—and to those futile fancies hurrying past the [illegible] on her way to be [illegible] in the hands of the man she loved upon her wedding night, so [illegible] and as untainted as her mind although she knew that once she loved she would go down before that mighty force as a tree before a storm. Dull, you will say at this. May be but mighty refreshing in these days when amourette follows amourette as surely as Monday follows Sunday, the only difference in the stock being the trade mark, which stamps the one with the outline of a perfect limousine, and the other with the front seat on the top of an omnibus; though believe me the Mondays and Sundays differ not at all.

Jill's ideas on franchise and suffrage, and a "good time" as seen from the standpoint of the average society girl or woman were absolutely nil.

She wanted first of all a master, then a home, and then children, many of them.

Her idea of love was utter submission to the man she should love. Her ideal of happiness his happiness. And although she had no real idea of her future she was [illegible] certain she did not want lodge gates and footmen paying [illegible], nor tame deer inside [illegible] for the white-capped nurse sniff with a starch trundling a perambulator with a fat, ordinary, rosy hair to the pelican, deer and pullars of locks.

So she sweetly but very definitely said no to a certain million aire, who had earned his banking account and the thanks of many thousands by his invention of a non-popping champagne cork, and who, adoring the girl, had hastened the very day the news of the smash had spread though the country, like fire on a windy day, to say his piece of mind all that thousands offered at her beautiful feet. The disgust of her relatives upon her want of common sense was outspoken; for having overlooked their respective qualities with commendable female arrows, they quite naturally looked with dismay upon an almost beautiful and quite penniless and homeless girl about whom, after having read the will, they were forced to say "poor Jill, for whom I suppose we must do something don't you know?" with a quavering inflection at the end of the sigh.

But Jill did not stop on refusing the eligible owner of an earned paged estate. Not she; she set out to look for work off her own bat and actually found it in that occupation which, for less paid than none, opens up a perfect vista of possible adventures under the guise of a traveling companion.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES BY ANNE LISLE

"IT is important matters which brought me here," laughed Ross, tilting her head at me with one of the abrupt changes of mood a man might find charming "It is most important matters—to you, I think, far more than to me."

"We share interests, don't we?" I asked.

I was proud of those words. I felt sure Jim would approve of them. For the first time I felt I'd been completely tactful and even diplomatic in my treatment of Ross. The way she took them astounded me. She flung back her head and burst out in a peal of laughter. It wasn't [illegible] thrilling merriment—it had a [illegible] escaped the raucous note of a parrakeet.

"We share some interests. But there are others I think I do not let you—how you say—wish on Rosa Cordova."

She gasped the words between bursts of laughter. But her eyes were sober and problem—they frightened me. I read something disturbing—almost threatening—in their steady, purposeful gaze.

"We share business interests. I don't understand your methods, but I have an idea that you are working loyally for J. H. Harrison & Co., I said, with an effort to restore dignity to the situation.

"Pour Jaime—ecve," corrected Ross insolently. "But not for your father"

"My father?" I gasped.

"Not for a gentleman named"—

Ross paused and widened her eyes at me with elaborate innocence. She seemed to be seeking the way to express something. Then her eyes began to dance. Looking her full in the face, she flung out—named Lucius Lu ky Lee

As she called Dad Lee by his full name, Rosa Cordova laughed with malice that didn't try to mask [illegible] as anything else. The fact that he has come back to town, stunned me. I sat [illegible] silent until Rosa forced me to speak.

"You are not very proud of your father?" she smiled with half [illegible] eyes.

"The woman who would deny her father—isn't worth much," I replied.

Even to myself I sounded like a copybook maxim. The fact that Jim doesn't know of Dad Lee's wife it imperative that I [illegible] not commit myself.

I don't [illegible] Dad Lee. Even when his first tidings of [illegible] prodigal father who has come to claim me. I am not [illegible] any attitude toward Dad Lee. But I [illegible] neither am I proud of Dad Lee. And I feel justified [illegible] of my undying love for the [illegible] whose life was such a struggle after he deserted her. That is [illegible] forced by my devotion to Father Andrew who gave to my little mother and me our first warm haven of home and protecting love.

"A woman might try to deny her father if he is not worth much," smiled Rosa so knowingly that I felt convinced she had met Dad Lee.

"Will you please speak more plainly?" I asked quietly.

"You don't deny?" she demanded.

"What is there for me to deny?" I said almost conversationally.

The more she tried to play with my feelings, as a cat does with a mouse, the more I felt called upon to meet her with the weapon of seeming suavity and imperturbability.

"You are clever!" she burst out suddenly. "I—how you say—always take off my hat to clever-ness—ing, Rosa Cordova"

"Thank you," I said, holding myself in check.

"That was clever, too. It is nice to have it recognized that one is a connoisseur—a good judge. I give you a compliment. I say you are clever. You do not deny. Voilà! We go down to the business for which we are met now. Shall I tell you my story from the beginning?"

"Your story interests me strangely." I laughed, trying to find my mental equilibrium by picking things in lighter vein.

Landru—His Secret Love Affairs

First Authentic Story of French Bluebeard, Who Won 283 Women, Written By William Le Queux

AFTER the doing away with Madame Buisson, from whose estate he got the munificent sum of ten pounds, Landru, funds running low, set his shrewd wits to work. He always had the future in mind.

Even while he was with Mme. Buisson he had been corresponding with a certain woman named Jaume, who, living apart from her husband, had been one night introduced to him by a friend of his named Armand Bilaist, while they were seated in one of the cabarets in the Montmartre. He did not, as was given in the evidence, meet her through one of his alluring matrimonial advertisements. The man Bilaist was a blackmailer of women, as Landru well knew, and at first he was somewhat surprised that he, confrere of the underworld, should introduce him.

Madame Jaume was a well-preserved, well-dressed woman, but over a drink, later, the blackmailer confided to his friend, who had more than once assisted him in his dirty work, that the lady, who was living apart from her husband, was of no further use to him.

"I believed that she had money. But I find that her husband has left her and gone to Italy. So I am passing her by. Nice woman—eh?"

"Very," declared Landru. He knew that Bilaist dealt in hundreds of thousands of francs, whereas he himself dealt only in petty hundreds, and he was wondering whether Madame Jaume's possessions would be worth the trouble to gain.

His criminal mind, however, never allowed a chance to slip, so before they parted he had lived his next day called upon her.

Madame Jaume, to surprise, received him very cordially at the flat she occupied at 23 Rue des Lyanes, and gave him some tea.

Now, in passing, it should be noted that Landru, in his famous, ✦ memorandum-book designated her under the word "Lyanes," and also under the name of "Bathelemy"—which was her maiden name—and also as "Chine," because Madame had found employment at a dressmaker's in the Rue de Chine. It was an obsession of his to designate each of his victims in his notebook, although his memory was an abnormal one, and he could recollect dates with marvellous precision.

He pursued Madame Jaume's acquaintance, and having invited her out to dinner at a restaurant at the bottom of the Avenue de l'Opera, he succeeded in extracting from her the fact that her husband had deserted her, and she now intended to gain her living by dressmaking.

He at once became affectionate and charming, and next day, when he called, the unsuspecting woman told him more about herself. She was born in 1878, in Nimes, and had been educated in a convent there. Her family had been annoyed by her marriage because the dot given was considered insufficient. Her husband, Monsieur Jaume, soon left her, the police wanting him for swindling.

On that night, when she related these things, Landru wrote in his famous note-book:

"Bathelemy, metre Martin-Nadaud, 20 centimes."

The minute manner in which he noted his expenditure upon his victims was surely a mania.

On the following day he wrote in French in his little pocket-book:

"26, Rue de Chine; Barthelemy. Looks much younger than she really is. Her appearance gratified; has been separated from her husband for several years; fervent Catholic; will not seek a divorce."

That took place months before. Now Landru was wondering, if she died, how much would be his profit.

He wrote to her, regretting that his long absence had been due to business. He had been in Switzerland, he said, and asked her to treat him for dinner at the Drouant, in the Rue Gaillon. To his delight, she consented, and she arrived, on that wintry evening, warmly clad, and looking younger than ever.

Posing as an ben vivant of means, he ordered a little dinner as a French gourmet would, served in a semi-private room where he behaved most decorously. He pretended to be tired of the world, intensely bored, and he expressed his intention to travel to India and America for a year or so.

"I am sick of Paris," declared the bald-headed man as he sat in his dinner-jacket and immaculate shirt, while he held his cigarette between his tapering fingers and sipped his glass of champagne. "In a week moment, a year ago, I bought a little villa out at Garnbais, in the Seine-et-Oise—a pretty place, it is true, with a charming rose-garden—very pretty in Summer. But I shall sell it and go abroad. First, I shall go to London—then out to the Far East."

Landru had already exercised all his allurements upon the deserted woman, whose husband, wanted for an offence, had fled to Italy. On her part, she had told him of her skeleton in her cupboard. And, further, she had revealed to him that she was highly religious.

She knew him as Lucien Guillot, an engineer who had come as a refugee from Lille on the advance of the Germans. He had had, he told her, a big factory in Lille, but had very fortunately been able to transfer the quarter of a million francs which he possessed into the Credit Lyonnais.

All these exaggerations made by the calm, black-bearded man impressed the woman, who was earning her living as a forewoman at a fashionable Paris dressmaker's.

Now here is a piece of very interesting evidence. On the famous carnet which the arch-assassin carried always in his pocket, and which is still preserved, there are upon the leaf dated 27th November:

"Luncheon with 'Lyanes,' 8 francs 10"—meaning the woman of the Rue des Lyanes. This followed next day, after the dinner at the Drouant.

Then on the next line is this entry which I have myself examined:

"Given at the church—one penny."

So exact was Landru in putting down every sou he spent upon his victims that he actually recorded the two sous he gave at the church service he attended with this latest victim, with whom he made such pretense of silent love.

Whether Landru was at all attracted by this dressmaker whose husband had left is doubtful. But he wrote her a number of love-letters which he had copied from several notable love-romances.

He addressed her as: "Sweet adored one." In a long epistle he wrote her soon after their first introduction, and in another he declared "your eyes sparkle like the petals of the flowers in the dewy morning." By his poetry, his pretended love of nature, of birds, and of flowers, combined with the hypnotism of his strange eyes, he no doubt held a strange fascination over the middle-class Frenchwoman.

It is quite certain that Madame Jaume, withholding her secret from her relatives, met "Bluebeard" many times. The murderer constantly urged her to obtain a divorce, but owing to her religious scruples—she being a devout Catholic—she always hesitated."

He said he was hoping to marry her, and, to carry his pretensions further, he had the colossal impudence to pretend a religious life, and accompanied her to Mass on several occasions. He knelt by her side in church, mumbling prayers; yet at the same time he was scheming to obtain her few paltry possessions when the time was ripe to kill her!

The arch-assassin was a man of great ability; sagacious, and of definite resource. Yet he was confidently stupid. He fondly believed that, if his victims disappeared—if he got rid of their bodies—that he would be safe. It had hardly ever occurred to him that—sooner or later—friends of the women who had disappeared would begin to institute inquiries. His own intelligence would, one reflects, have told him that his only chance of safety was to leave Paris and never return.

But, on the contrary, he seems to have behaved with an utter disregard of the police, and with the firm conviction—that same conviction which he held at his trial—that his crimes could never be brought home to him.

Where was the evidence? he always asked himself. There was none—only that the women had disappeared; and so he comforted himself in the fact that about three hundred women disappear from Paris annually, some into the underworld, others escaping from hostile, or some eloping with lovers. So many women disappear from every European capital each year that it is impossible for the police to concentrate their energies upon every reported case. With such arguments "Bluebeard" comforted himself.

Now, after a very close and clever conversation with Madame Jaume, which took place in her flat in the Rue des Lyanes, the full-bearded gentleman with the fatal eyes-wanda being a devout Catholic—she always hesitated."

Henri Landru and Some of His Victims

THE STORY SO FAR

Landru's early life is described by M. Le Queux in the opening chapter of his story of the world's greatest love criminal. After years of petty swindling he turned his attention to victimizing women, making love to them, getting control of their property, and then killing them. Mme. Cuchet was one of the first. Landru poisoned her and her son Andre in a villa rented with her money and burned their bodies in a furnace. He then made love to Mme Laborde-Line. Meanwhile the police investigated his activities at the villa and he shrewdly played for time, going to Nice and notifying them he would have to be gone a week or more. Meanwhile he made love to several other women, including Nina Langlois, to whom he wrote affectionately and got her to sign over her money. His affair with Elise Laporte followed. Next he killed Mme. Heon. Audree Babelay, a poor shopgirl, fell into his clutches.

Detector Used at Sea

A typical perikon detector stand such as is used in commercial work. Note that the bornite crystal may be adjusted to come in contact with any one of the several zincite crystals by means of a simple adjustment.

THIS story that Edison examined nearly every substance in the world in search for a filament for his incandescent lamp has been nearly duplicated by radio engineers in the search for the best possible material to be used for a detector or rectifier in radio receivers.

Even now experts are combing the mineral kingdom for a still more efficient crystal than those which are now considered best.

One of the first detectors ever used was the carbon detector. This consists merely of a piece of ordinary carbon in contact with a steel needle with a two or four-volt "local" battery in series. This detector was a good one, but not as efficient as later ones proved to be.

The next combination tried was a metal couple. This consisted of a small piece of tellurium, a rare metal, with an aluminum point in contact. This was used for a while until later discoveries showed that minerals were cheaper and better.

There followed the discovery of galena, which is lead sulphite, and many others. Galena was found to work best with a gold or silver wire which touched the crystal very lightly. Silicon was found to work best with a consehaped piece of antimony pressed against it.

The most sensitive crystals, however, were found to be in the use of one mineral in contact with another. For example, a copper sulphite crystal, commonly called bornite, used in contact with the iron sulphite known as chalcopyrite makes an excellent detector known as a "ferron" detector.

The type commonly used at sea is one of these two-mineral combinations. In this case it is a bornite crystal held in contact with a zincite crystal. Zincite is the red oxide of zinc, and the only trouble with its use lies in the fact that it disintegrates when exposed to moisture. A local battery is necessary with this combination. Bornite is a sulphite of copper and iron and is one of the valuable copper ores. Zincite, which is lead carbonate, is also commonly used in commercial work. Its advantage lies in the fact that it is not readily burnt out, or the adjustment lost by strong signals or static.

Proof That Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Is of Great Help at This Period

Metropolis, Illinois. — "I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it is all it claims to be and has benefited me wonderfully. I had been sick for eight months with a trouble which confined me to my bed and was only able to be up part of the time, when I was advised by a friend, Mrs. Smith, to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills. I was so much benefited by the use of these medicines that I was able to be up and about in two weeks. I was at the Change of Life when I began taking the medicines and I passed over that time without any trouble. Now I am hale and hearty, do all my housework, washing, ironing, scrubbing, and cooking, all there is to do about a house, and can walk two or three miles without getting too tired. I know of several of my neighbors who have been helped by your medicines."—Mrs. EMMA CULVER, 705 E. 7th St., Metropolis, Illinois.

"Sylpho-Nathol is all right"—said the plumber

"Mr. Gallagher, our plumber, came up to put new washers on the kitchen faucets last week. I was telling him how quickly our sink stopped smelling after we used Sylpho-Nathol.

"Sylpho-Nathol's the best friend I've got," he said. "I wish more people used it. They'd be happier and so would I. You would be surprised at the number of sinks I'm called in to take apart because they smell so badly. All that most of them need is just what you did to yours. When I clean out the pipes and the smell gets worse it looks as though I didn't know my business. Sylpho-Nathol certainly does its work well. There's no chance for sink trap smells when it's on the job. I'm telling everybody to use it.'

"Sylpho-Nathol has many other household uses. In the mop water it destroys germs that are bound to be in the dirt and dust that fills floor cracks and crannies. For rinsing out garbage receptacles and for spraying in dark cellar corners and other hard-to-reach places, it's a sure means of getting rid of objectionable odor. It should be used regularly in the bathroom, around the fixtures and as a flush for the closet bowl."

Sylpho-Nathol is pleasant to use. Its faint, clean, friendly smell doesn't linger.

Sylpho-Nathol is safe to use. Though far stronger than carbolic acid, it is as safe to have in the house as a cake of scouring soap. It won't hurt the skin nor injure household things.

Sylpho-Nathol is easy to prepare. A teaspoonful in a quart of warm water makes a clean, sweet-smelling, pearly-gray solution that's ready for immediate use.

Sylpho-Nathol comes in four handy sizes, 15c, 35c, 65c and $1.25. Your grocer or druggist can supply you. If he hasn't it, he can get it easily. Just ask for it by the name—"Sylpho-Nathol."

HELP FIGHT TO RID STATE OF MOSQUITOES

"Massachusetts can be made as free from the mosquito pest as the Panama Canal or England."

This statement from Dr. Francis K. Mahoney, head of the Boston Board of Health, is one great big reason why every man, woman and child, in this State should join with the Massachusetts Anti-Mosquito Association, Inc., in its fight.

How would it be to sit out on the front veranda at night, without any wire screening around, and be absolutely free from the mosquitoes?

"But it means individual effort on the part of everyone," continues the doctor. "If every man would take a look around his own house and clean out all stagnant water, a long step would be taken toward eliminating the pest.

"We can't install military law here, as was done in Panama, to force people to comply with this plan, but they should do so nevertheless."

So, then, join the Massachusetts Anti-Mosquito Association, Inc. You will find an application blank at the end of this story. Fill it out and mail it to the Mosquito Editor of the Boston American, as directed.

Then, and this is the real point, live up to the simple rules that are outlined. Clean out the stagnant water in your yard or in the gutters and eaves of your house. Pile up the old tin cans and send them to the dump.

Get your neighbor interested in the "no mosquito" problem and help clean up Massachusetts.

If there are any problems you want answered or any information you wish in regard to the mosquito question, the Mosquito Editor is at your service.

But, first of all, join the Massachusetts Anti-Mosquito Association, Inc., and show that you are really in earnest in your wish to see our Commonwealth rid of the pest.

Act now, sign the appended membership blank.

Fight the Mosquito

Let Everyone Join the Crusade by Getting Rid of All Stagnant Water on His Property

Let us all sign up to aid in the war against the deadly mosquito. It is not only often deadly to our health, but always deadly to our pleasure during that part of the Summer's day when the coolness thereof permits us to enjoy outdoors, namely, the twilight and evening.

To think that for hundreds and thousands of years we have suffered from mosquitoes when the United States government proved in the building of the Panama Canal that it was easily possible to get rid of them, is a remarkable commentary on the patience of people and on their incapacity to do great things without organization in that the greatest and most inclusive of all organizations—the government.

Join the crusade against the mosquito by destroying every single thing that may contain even a drop of stagnant water about your property—leaves in your gutter take up a little water, an old tin can, a hollow in a tree, a little depression in a sidewalk or under a step, or anything that allows water to stand.

If you see in your neighbor's yard an old plate or anything that looks as if it might contain water, speak to him if you know him well enough, speak to him, anyway; and if you are diffident about calling his attention to it, send him an anonymous letter or send the letter to the American and we will call his attention to it.

Senator Johnson

Now that Senator Reed has won his notable victory in Missouri, we may expect to hear that Senator Johnson has been equally victorious in California. Very much the same character of opposition is manifesting itself against Johnson as appeared against Reed, but Johnson has never lost a battle in California even when he was against the candidate for President of the United States on his own ticket against the entire Republican national party. Organized labor is with Senator Johnson, as well as the average consumer.

Canada Drug Smuggling

Two physicians have been arrested in Maine by the Federal authorities for drug smuggling from Canada. If they are guilty, we hope that they will be severely punished as an example to other physicians. This dastardly practice must be stopped. It will take time.

In the meantime our neighbors cannot afford to allow drugs to get into Canada for the purpose of being smuggled into America. Drugs do as much harm to the Canadians as they do to Americans.

Who Owns What?

Also a Hero, a Tip and Chaos

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

One Senator of the United States, earnest and honest, wants a committee to investigate the charge that some Senators are arranging the tariff to suit their pockets and their financial interests.

He wants to know whether any Senators are interested financially, through ownership or otherwise, in the great concerns that would be enriched by the tariff.

The information would be interesting, but the country won't get it. Still more interesting would be this information:

What big concerns that will be enriched by the tariff are interested in Senators, by ownership or otherwise?

Dr. MacKenzie of Toronto, studying and fighting disease, is killed by the streptococcus germ that he was studying. Each newspaper gives to his death about as much space as it gets here. If he had fought hard to kill his fellow men as he has fought to save them, and had died in the fighting, he would have a big monument.

When he comes back from his vacation in Scotland, George Harvey, our Ambassador in Europe, will move into the residence which the Anglo-American banker, J. Pierpont Morgan, has given to the United States government.

The Ambassador of the United States in the British Empire, therefore, will reside in a house that is a "tip" from the banker to his government. The tip probably was well learned, in the war, so let's accept it gratefully.

Europe is giving good imitation of first-class financial and economic chaos. The world ought soon to know whether or not those gentlemen will decide to start all over again and get back on their feet, or go to the financial bowwows. Things are bad enough here, but you may be grateful that this country stayed out of the League of Nations. We shall get off cheaply if we only lose ten thousand million dollars.

The attempt to climb Mt. Everest is officially abandoned. An avalanche killed some porters. The leaders gave up. The porters, whose names would mean nothing to us if they were printed, are hardy, courageous Himilayan natives, gone to join the millions that have worked for glory without getting it.

That avalanche means something. All avalanches are downward. They all tend to make the earth more nearly ROUND and to fill up the ocean, the rivers, the lakes. Each downward slip of land brings us nearer to the day when we shall have to dig artificial canals to hold the waters of the earth. If we failed to do that on a perfectly round planet the water would be a mile deep everywhere and we should have to go back to the fish life from which we emerged. (Apologies to W. J. Bryan.)

Children's Fares

In another column we print a letter from Timothy J. Driscoll, Representative from the Thirteenth Suffolk District, in which he claims to have been the author of the proposal for the five-cent fare for children. He gives the facts which seem to bear out his claim.

A correspondent asked us who the author of the scheme was and we are glad to present the facts on which Mr. Driscoll contends that he was the original author.

The Voice of New England

Better In Vaudeville

Editor Boston American:

Mary Agnes Vichestain, the girl evangelist, says she is right in preaching at the age of fourteen because Christ preached at the age of twelve. That philosophy may be true, but—tell me! Was there anything fiery or dramatic or passionate about the teachings of our Saviour? No! Christ was far removed from all that! Christ won by love and kindness and helping! But, all these Billy Sundays and Mary Vichestains would make excellent vaudeville performers! Not ministers of Christ!"

EDITH POOLE.

Arlington Heights.

Criticism Unjust

Editor Boston American:

I am one of many who think that the criticism of the child-evangelist is very unjust.

Who of us has not heard the age-old Bible sayings: "Wisdom shall come from the mouth of babes"—also: "And a little child shall lead them?" This applies to the conversion of Mary's parents by her. Otherwise, it might bear weight that a child of fourteen has not mind enough to know the ways of the world, etc., etc.

I was in a crowded church Thursday night, but I heard no unjust or unkind remarks at all. Everyone seemed delighted and thought her phenomenal. Portland is to be congratulated upon the hearty welcome they gave her. As for slang, it seems to be part of the flesh and blood of this generation, and this child does not realize how it sounds—or possibly knows that many of Billy Sunday's converts would never have been reached but by his slang.

As to hypocrisy of ministers and in the homes, M. A. undoubtedly means those who permit and encourage worldliness when we are thought by Him to forsake the world and His ways.

ONE WHO WAS BORN AGAIN.

Portland, Me.

Children's Fares

Editor Boston American:

My attention was attracted to a letter on the last page, printed under "Voice of New England," relative to the 5-cent fare for the children of Boston. It was extremely gratifying to me as the originator of the measure to see that my efforts were appreciated to some degree.

My own childhood experience taught me very thoroughly that the child of limited means misses a great deal which he as a citizen of a democracy should enjoy. At that time I resolved that if in later life the opportunity came to me I would do my utmost to better conditions and make life more enjoyable for the kiddies.

Summer was approaching. Those who could afford to had closed their city homes and gone to the beach and country to escape the hot weather. It occurred to me that the children should have an opportunity to enjoy the recreations provided at City Point, Franklin Park, Arnold Arboretum and other public centres. I believed that if the carfare were reduced from 10 cents to 5 cents during the Summer months, these pleasures would be within the reach of all the children.

Upon investigation, I learned that the children were receiving half-rates during the school term and felt sure that if the Boston Elevated could afford to give a half-rate to certain school children, they at least could give other children a half-rate fare during the Summer months.

Therefore, I drafted an order requesting the Elevated to grant this privilege and presented the same to the House of Representatives. Under the parliamentary practice, it was sent for hearing before the Committee on Rules, which reported that the order ought not to pass, and the House accepted the committee's report. I was astounded! I rose from my seat and moved for reconsideration. After debating the question for an hour, the House accepted my order by the narrow margin of one vote—55 to 54.

The order was signed and sent to the Elevated trustees, and on motion of Mr. Frank J. O'Hara the same was adopted and extended to all Elevated lines. This is the complete story of the fight for the children's 5-cent fare.

TIMOTHY J. DRISCOLL.

Representative Thirteenth Suffolk District.

Tip on Ptomaine Poisoning

Editor Boston American:

"Lobster Salad Makes 160 Sick," the papers tell us. It wasn't the lobster nor any "tainted" food; but just food in excess. It is the universal habit, world over, to eat more than the system requires, and that means more than the stomach can digest or the system withstand. If food is not digested it inevitably putrifies, and this putrescence absorbed into the circulation constitutes the intestinal outotoxaemia of ptomaine poisoning of which we hear so much of late, but about which physicians in general know so little, attributing it to a "germ"! Gastric juice is the most deadly germicide known, and in a moderate meal when the diner is in good condition even tainted food will be taken care of with no serious results. The 160 sick ones were victims of wrong and over-eating of heavy food on a Summer day.

EASY LYING NOWADAYS IS EASILY DETECTED

By Dr. Charles Fleischer.

AS easy as lying!

Yes, but what's the use; when it has become almost as easy to uncover the lie?

Along comes the sphygmomanometer, one of the latest inventions of science, whose highly specialized function it is to detect falsehood.

As humorous philosopher and cruel cartoonist have often observed, some one—or some thing—is always taking the joy out of life.

What's the good of living, if you have to give up the fun of lying?

We had thought it was the privilege of science and invention to add the satisfactions and comforts of man. But we must curb our generous appreciation in the presence of this monstrous sphygmomanometer, this mechanical detective.

Even at the behest of science, we refuse to be deprived of the democratic luxury of lying, i. e., without a registered protest.

It was bad enough and sad enough when the moralists asserted the mischief of mendaciousness, and in the name of ethics and religion solemnly placed a ban upon this ancient, universal and delicious type of self-indulgence.

It was still worse when psychology claimed to have discovered that lying disintegrated our personality.

Even then we were willing to take our chance with conscience and our individually own "lunards."

And when the practical philosophers assured us that it was exceedingly difficult to follow up sufficiently quickly a lie once started by providing it with companions to save its face,—even then we were willing to show our nimbleness and exceed the speed limit in proving that one good lie deserves another.

But now, with the advent of the sphygmomanometer, the situation has become desperate. Easy as lying, indeed! Science has made it practically impossible.

If This Is Your Birthday

You Are LUCKY

IF today is your birthday you should be versatile, enthusiastic and irresponsible. You are a person whose success in life will depend almost entirely upon the happy accident of finding something to do which really interests you, for no amount of advice nor example will force you to drudgery.

Today is one of extremely doubtful fortune, both for new and for old projects. Postpone all important decisions.

During the ensuing year you will meet with deception and annoyance in your domestic life, but compensated by unexpected success in your business.

A child born today will be generous in thought and in deed and joyous in disposition.

ARE YOU ADVERTISING YOURSELF SUFFICIENTLY?

Don't wait for some one to come along and push you into something better—do some pushing yourself.

If you sit down and wait for that needed boost, the chances are that it will never come.

Take an interest in things where you will be known, and then if you meet the requirements of those outside your particular circle of business, you will be asked to step up higher.

If your pride will not permit you to do anything which will create an opening for you along the line you want, you might as well make up your mind to stay where you are.

More progressive, aggressive persons are going to pass you.

More competent men would be filling good positions with credit if some of them could be persuaded to exercise aggressiveness.

It is not necessary to be an egotist and disagreeable about it.

Failure is often due to the fact that the man or woman with talents is afraid to advertise consistently and become known.

SEEN AND HEARD

"WRITE nine letters to nine persons and you'll have the greatest luck in the world," wrote a friend to Colonel M. G. Spinks, assistant chief of staff of the First Corps Area. He did, and a few days later while out fishing he fell out of the boat and almost drowned.

Did you know that "The Old Oaken Bucket" is in Greenbush, which is part of Scituate? It is the original moss-covered bucket which inspired Wordsworth to write the famous old poem which later became a song. He had swung it down into the old well and drank the cold waters until inspired to write of it.

An inebriated gentleman called at the Copley-Plaza and went to the desk.

"Tell Mr. Henry Ford I'd like to see him."

"He isn't stopping here."

"Yes, he is!"

"Sorry, but Mr. Ford isn't registered."

"Must be. I saw his car outside."

Revere and Nantasket and other beaches about Boston have not to date shown any mermaids in the new-fangled rubber bathing suits. But as the abbreviated suits they sport as a rule make everybody rubber, what's the difference?

DR. ERWIN C. RUTH, agent in charge of the local Federal Narcotic Bureau, is a versatile individual. In college he attained dual fame as editor of the college paper, and as a star amateur actor. After leaving college he studied art. He has drawn cartoons, and made photographs for a living, and has played both on the stage and on the silversheet. And at that he is one of the oldest narcotic sleuths in point of service.

JACK DEMPSEY is becoming the polished epigrammatist. One of his admirers remarked to him while he was visiting the Mayor's office that the lack of contenders for the heavyweight division might stand in his way. Without so much as a verbal feint, Dempsey shot back: "Where there's a Willa there's a way." Which ought to get him the decision.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON LURE OF GREAT MEN

By Garrett P. Serviss

HEARING the other day a missionary song that I used often to luxuriate in when I was a Sunday school boy in a country church: "There's a cry from Macedonia, 'Come and help us.' I fell into a kind of philosophical mood, such as often throws light on the mental tendencies exhibited in our early experience, when we were not yet capable of analyzing them, or felt no wish to do so. In the peculiar and powerful influence that that song exercised over me—some thrilling vibration of which I felt upon hearing it again after so many years—it is easy to recognize the fact that I was born a "hero worshipper," or, however, in any subservient sense, I hope, and that I still belong in that category of human kind.

I am one of those who believe in great men and their leadership. To illustrate—I think that the colonists would inevitably have lost our Revolutionary War, but for George Washington; that astronomy would have remained, for another hundred or thousand years, in its ill-fitting swaddling clothes if Copernicus, Galileo, Kepler, and Tycho Brahe had not arisen; that the personal merit of Columbus in the discovery of America is superior to any tendency of his age, though Columbus' character was probably the concentrated expression of the gathering power of a world-wide disposition, as a thunderbolt is a concentration of the electric energies in a cloud.

I believe, too, that the providence of history fashions its great men, its instruments, for the purpose that they serve, and that they are not mere accidents which might have turned out differently but for favorable environment and good luck. A great character, though bound by destiny, may often make environment and command fortune. We may never solve the mystery of the combination of fate with free will, but though a great man be an instrument he is never a mere machine.

In the case of the song mentioned above it was not the missionaries carrying the gospel to a heathen land that stirred my imagination and my enthusiasm for human greatness, but it was the strangely recalled memory of Alexander of Macedon, "Alexander the Great." Simply to encounter the name of Macedonia yet living outside of the pages of Plutarch was thrilling to me.

No one, however, in any way guessed what was passing in my overwrought soul, or why there were sometimes tears on my lids—tears of gratified pride; or why I had, as I imagined, so soldierly a bearing. If some had known the secret I should have been rebuked. Boys are often scolded for following the lure of their day dreams, but such rebukes are not always either wise or just.

I have followed many such lures—and I do not believe that they have led me into any harm. They are not harmful, but helpful, when they are born of a familiar study of history, of human character, of great heroes and leaders and discoverers, and of the facts and scenes of nature.

All of these things need a certain lesson of the imagination in order that they may enter into the structure of the individual character, enriching the mind, widening its scope of thought and sympathy, and giving that greatest of all personal possessions, a store of self-won and self-tested intellectual and moral resources.

—Medbury Says—

Auto Traffic Is So Thick That Some Hold a Compass, But the Wise Carry Insurance

Traffic rules are getting so strict that a pedestrian can now cross the street and only be hit once.

Some people get so used to being struck that if a machine doesn't hit them they go back in the street and lie down.

They not only hope to get run over, they demand it.

In New York, the Fifth Avenue buses are so crowded that this is the only way some people can get a ride.

In lots of towns the traffic runs in all directions at the same time. This is bad, because a man from the South doesn't like to be hit from the north.

And a native son is insulted if you run over him from the east.

Some pedestrians hold a compass, but the wise ones carry insurance.

The average pedestrian always has his policy with him. He likes to have something to read on the way to the hospital.

A country town tried to be up-to-date once and put a traffic cop in the business district. He got run over three times the first day and four times the next. He told the chief of police that he'd be glad when Sunday came.

These "Go" and "Stop" signs are a failure, but the police department is getting its money back by selling them to parents who have girls in their family. Father puts these signals in the parlor to guide the fellows who call on his daughters.

But some fellows are so used to driving a machine that they won't "Go" until they hear a whistle.

And some birds seems to think that the couch is a safety station.

One wise father got rid of a caller by honking a horn and kicking him at the same time. The guy thinks yet that he was hit by a Ford.

The only reason he thought it was a Ford was because he heard the old man's teeth rattle at the same time.

Automobiles are supposed to keep people outside, but they're keeping most of us in.

Doctors tell us that walking is healthy but statistics show us that riding is healthier.

Walking is a great sport, especially for those who are driving machines.

The average pedestrian who gets hit is always to blame, and if you don't believe it, ask the fellow who hits him.
